10 Nations Ask Meeting To Deal With Guatemala

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — The United States and nine other American nations called tonight for an inter-American meeting of foreign ministers July 7 to agree upon measures for dealing with Communist "intervention" in Guatemala.

The letter was addressed to Chairman Hector David Castro (El Salvador) of the Council of Organization of American States. It requested that as a matter of urgency a Council meeting be called as soon as possible to formally order the foreign ministers session on July 7.

The Council will decide where the conference should be held. There had been speculation on Montevideo as a site, but diplomats now consider Rio de Janeiro, birthplace of the Inter-American Defense Treaty in 1947, as a more likely place.

The letter asserted "It is abundantly clear that the nations of this continent are today faced with a situation which they believe endangers the peace of America and affects the sovereignty and political independence of the American states."

The United States considers that the Guatemalan government has been infiltrated with Communists who also have achieved positions of power in other sections of the nation's structure, notably the labor movement. The letter referred to "the demonstrated intervention of the International Communist movement in the Republic of Guatemala."

It said furthermore that recent outbreaks of violence there intensify concern over the situation and "pose an urgent need" for the foreign ministers meeting.

The letter was signed by representatives of Nicaragua, Peru, Cuba, Honduras, the United States, Panama, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Brazil and Costa Rica. It was delivered to the office of the Organization of American States here and was released by the State Department about 6 p.m.

There was no hint as to the measures which might be taken or suggested to the proposed July 7 session.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said the foreign ministers could do anything they wished to do. This would seem to mean that the whole range of action from a resolution of denunciation to armed intervention would be possible.

However, all indications up to this time have been that much less drastic action would be favored, that some kind of economic quarantine might be applied to the regime of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman at Guatemala City, assuming it succeeds in overcoming

Rebels Call On Guatemala Army To Seize Power

TEGUIGALPA, Honduras, June 26 (AP) — The anti-Communist "Liberation army" announced tonight that its forces are battling with 1,500 "well-equipped" Guatemalan regulars attempting to defend Zacapa, rail center 25 miles north of the Honduran border.

A communique also declared an anti-Communist uprising had broken out in Puerto Barrios, chief Guatemalan port on the Caribbean, and "There is fighting in the streets and plazas."

It said the fuel tanks which remained after the port's main oil tank had been destroyed by rebel air raids several days ago, were blown up.

The communique said 500 or more anti-Communist yesterday staged another uprising in the town of Jalapa and were attacking military installations.

The communique, the seventh issued by the rebels since Col. Carlos Castillo Armas pulled the trigger for the revolution nine days ago, followed a call by the insurgents for the 6,000-man Guatemalan army to revolt.

The rebels' secret "Liberation radio" told army leaders to join President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman and his regime and set up a military government to consult with the insurgents. The broadcast proposed that a joint ceasefire then be arranged to end the bloodshed.

The Guatemalan Communists, not the army, proclaimed the enemy of the invading forces.

The communique tonight said several Guatemalan air force pilots had deserted. It named two majors and a lieutenant who had

Churchill For Further Delay In Indo-China

Talks With Ike Reveal Width Of Allied Schism

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill told congressional leaders today the United States and Britain, as military partners, must remain strong and vigilant in order to permit "peaceful coexistence" with Russia.

The 79-year-old British leader spoke briefly to 22 Senate and House leaders who joined him as guests at a White House luncheon President Eisenhower gave in his honor.

Meanwhile Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles, with an assistant from Australia's visiting foreign minister, were reported pressing Churchill to agree to quick action by free nations to save Red-threatened Southeast Asia.

Persons who attended the White House luncheon reported Churchill indirectly noted the split in Asiatic policy which threatens the traditionally close ties between Britain and the United States.

However, he took the view that differing views between friends can be considered calmly in order to devise a joint approach.

"It is better to talk jaw to jaw than to have war," Churchill was quoted as saying. Churchill scheduled a private meeting this afternoon with Dulles, who has been a frequent critic of British Far East policy. But this meeting was later postponed until tomorrow in order to give the aging Prime Minister a chance to nap this afternoon before resuming talks with Eisenhower.

In addressing the congressmen, Churchill made clear he fully supports Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden whose recent speech containing harsh criticism of U. S. foreign policy aroused bitter comments from top State Department officials.

Churchill was quoted as saying he liked the way Eden mentioned "peaceful coexistence" with Russia as the ultimate goal of British policy. Churchill said he thought it was well put.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles personally urged Britain's leader, along with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, to add Britain's military might to a free world coalition of nations as rapidly as possible.

Eisenhower and Dulles were reported to have stressed this view in separate meetings at the White House and State Department as their confidential talks with Churchill and Eden entered their second day.

In discussing the Southeast Asia crisis, including the fate of Red-threatened Indochina, the four men were seeking to mend British-American ties of cooperation, badly frayed in recent months.

These other key developments, meanwhile, made it clear a climax was rapidly approaching in the free world's much-discussed efforts either to end the Indochina war on honorable terms or create a "united front" of anti-Communist nations to block new Red aggression.

1. Australia's Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey arrived to talk with top British and American leaders and promptly announced that his government "is definitely for a mutual defensive arrangement in Southeast Asia. I hope the discussions will start on it soon."

2. Informed officials said Premier Mendes-France, the new French leader, had secretly notified Churchill and Eisenhower he was encouraged about the prospects for an armistice with the Communists to end the 7-year-old Indochina struggle. Numerous de-

Open Grave Disproves Body Switching Rumors

GREENADA, Miss., —UP— The grave of 83-year-old John Bickerstaff was opened here after relatives received two mysterious telephone calls leading them to believe the funeral home had switched bodies on them.

Bickerstaff's widow and her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Frayser of Memphis, positively identified the body of Bickerstaff, who died last Feb. 6, after it was dug up yesterday.

Mrs. Frayser said one of her relatives told her after her father died that a medical school would pay $500 for the body for research purposes, and tried to get her to sign release papers.

She refused, she said, and a few hours later got a telephone call from a man who identified himself as a doctor at the school and who wanted to know if Bickerstaff had any identifying marks.

Mrs. Frayser said the man hung

U. S. Rejects Russia's Charge Of Ship Seizure

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — The United States curtly rejected today as without any foundation at all a Russian charge that the U. S. Navy had seized the 8,840-ton tanker Tuapse last Wednesday south of the island of Formosa.

Nationalist China announced yesterday that it had seized the Soviet vessel because it was bound for the port of Shanghai on the Red Chinese mainland in defiance of a Nationalist blockade.

In a note to the United States on Thursday, Moscow asserted it would take measures to safeguard Soviet ships in the region of Formosa, where the United States Seventh Fleet operates.

Today the State Department announced the U. S. Embassy in Moscow had delivered this note to the Kremlin.

"The U. S. government refers to the Soviet government's note of June 24 regarding interception of the Soviet tanker Tuapse by a war vessel of the destroyer type in Far Eastern waters."

"The U. S. government rejects as completely without foundation the allegation made by the Soviet government that naval forces of the United States have seized or otherwise interfered with the movement of the Soviet tanker in question."

Press Officer Lincoln White was asked whether the note was not unusually brief. He replied that there was no point in spending a lot of words on a report that was "totally false."

Crew Of Tanker Being Questioned By Nationalists

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Unofficial reports circulated today that the job of pumping a cargo of oil from the seized Russian tanker Tuapse was under way or about to be started.

Nationalist China announced last night that one of its warships had intercepted the Tuapse off Formosa Wednesday and had escorted it to the port of Kaohsiung.

Official sources refused to discuss the tanker.

Meager press reports and other unofficial sources said, however, that Nationalist intelligence officers have been questioning 40 to 50 crewmen, all of whom are Russian.

Some of the crewmen were said to have been cooperative, and some officials reportedly considered it likely that a number would ask political asylum in Formosa.

More than 20 Polish crewmen aboard the two ships seized earlier have asked asylum here.

There was speculation—but no official indication—that the Tuapse might be released if the Nationalists satisfy themselves it is owned by Russia and not Communist China.

An official correction in the English translation of last night's announcement on the tanker being intercepted on the high seas.

Some sources said the Nationalists probably would claim soon that the vessel was in territorial waters of Formosa or some Nationalist-held island.

The Tuapse is being held in the same harbor as two ships to which Poland claims title—the tanker Praca and the freighter Gottwald.

Berserk Negro Murderer Kills County Sheriff

Clarksdale Man Slain By Posse In Wild Fight

CLARKSDALE, MISS., — UP— A berserk Negro was riddled by a hail of bullets today as he tried to blast his way out of the rambling warehouse where he shot down the sheriff who sought to arrest him for another slaying.

Coahoma county Sheriff A. H. (Brick) Gotcher, 42, an ex-infantry officer who survived rugged North Africa and Italy campaigns of World War II, was slain by the Negro, Bennie Hale, who killed a Negro man and wounded a Negro woman a short time earlier.

Hale was flushed from the cotton compress that covers more than a dozen acres with a fusillade of tear gas bombs. He dashed out firing the 32-20 Smith and Wesson special revolver he used to kill Gotcher and Negro Hayes Burgess.

Hale, about 45, was felled by a barrage of bullets fired by peace officers who surrounded the compress, one of several in this prosperous Delta cotton growing center. Gotcher, who suffered a near fatal throat wound in World War I, was shot four times about 7 a.m. when he found Hale hiding in one of the many rooms in the spacious warehouse.

A deputy, N. F. Black, and assistant city police chief W. R. Joyner were slaking Hale, described as a troublemaker among the Negroes of the city, in another part of the big warehouse.

"Somebody yelled not to enter the next room," Black said. "We managed to get the sheriff out and started using tear gas. Hale came out shooting. There's no telling which officer got him." Officers found more than 100 cartridges on Hale.

Joyner said "family troubles" touched off Hale's spree about 5:30 a.m.

"He'd been on a rampage all night, looking for his wife. She came in about five o'clock and they had an argument. She ran out of the house," Joyner said.

The woman, Laura Mae, ran to the Burgess' home. Hale followed, shot Burgess and wounded the woman. Her wound was not serious. Joyner said Hale fled to the compress and Gotcher eventually heard the radio messages between police cars about the shooting and joined the hunt.

Joyner said Hale had been jailed six or eight times in the past half dozen years for disturbing the peace in the Negro section.

"I don't think he was drinking," Joyner said. "He was a troublemaker but never bothered white people."

Officers said Hale killed another wife six years ago during a rampage.

A Helping Hand

An act of essential kindness shown to a seriously ailing stranger was observed and reported in downtown Monroe the other day. A rather elderly man was almost carried from the Ochs-Bank Building elevator to the street by a young man. When on the sidewalk the man leaned heavily against the building for support, while the young man left, evidently to get his automobile.

Two women, one changing to be a registered practical nurse and the other a nurse's aide rushed up to the man and asked if they could help in any way.

"Oh, I am a very sick man!" he ejaculated.

The women then asked if they could call an ambulance but he said the young man would soon come with his car to take him to a hospital. One of the nurses took his pulse and was informed that he was suffering from a serious gall bladder trouble. It was not a sudden heart attack, he explained.

"Oh, don't leave me alone here a minute!" he implored. Mopping his brow and giving encouragement, the women stayed at his side for a full hour until the young man came with his car through crowded traffic.

He was appreciative of the kindness of the woman and offered payment, which they quickly rejected. With their help, the young man (Continued On Second Page)

Right To Work Bill Set For Action Tonight, As Louisiana House Meets

BATON ROUGE, June 26 (AP) — The Louisiana Legislature, fresh and relaxed after a week-end fishing trip, tensed for an expected bitter House floor fight tomorrow night on the right-to-work bill.

The lawmakers quit at noon Thursday and the majority fished and relaxed until today on an excursion to Grand Isle sponsored by the coastal parishes.

Both houses return at 8 p.m. tomorrow to an overtime schedule with stiff struggles expected on many issues as the 1954 session heads into the home stretch toward July 8 adjournment.

The explosive bill banning compulsory labor union membership was reported unfavorably Wednesday night by the House Labor and Capital Committee and the first floor fireworks came in the night session following committee action.

Proponents fought off an effort to report the bill to the House that night which would have advanced the floor action on the minority report to Thursday morning.

Right-to-work passed the Senate 22-14 after a record-breaking 26 hours of hearings and 6½ hours of turbulent floor debate.

Few issues have raised such a storm in the Legislature.

The right-to-work leaders quickly adjourned the House Wednesday night and set the stage for the fight tomorrow night. Under House procedure a committee report must be approved by one legislative day before it is accepted or rejected by the House. The Labor and Capital Committee report was read Thursday.

In an aftermath of the flare-up, Rep. James Beeson of Jefferson Parish resigned Thursday as chairman of the Labor and Capital Committee. He protested charges he meant to "railroad" the bill by reporting it Wednesday night.

Beeson refused to reconsider his action, despite praise for his fairness at the two-day hearings and a rising vote of confidence by the House.

The only way the House could avoid the first formal test on right-to-work tomorrow night would be to skip over that order of business. If the minority report is accepted, it will mean the bill comes up for final floor action later in the week. Rejection will kill the bill.

The Senate faced final action next week on the general appropriations bill, providing operating funds for most state agencies, and a compromise program to ban livestock from the highways and help pay for fencing the roads, plus a flood of smaller appropriations bills.

All appropriations bills must be finally passed by the Senate this week in order to reach the governor's desk by the July 3 deadline, five days before adjournment.

The general appropriations bill totaled $16 million dollars when introduced. The House added 16 million before passage, mostly for education, and the Senate Finance Committee tacked on another million making a record total of $33 million dollars for state agencies.

The major money measure will come up for final passage Monday. Aside from money matters, the

Bodies Of Four Are Recovered; Others Sought

Giant 'Seiche' Swamps Beaches, Engulfs Piers

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP) — A giant Lake Michigan wave rolled over Chicago's beaches and piers today, sweeping more than a score of terrified fishermen into the churning waters. Four bodies were recovered and police estimated at least nine others drowned.

Onlookers said the wave rose five to 20 feet over beaches and harbors on a 25-mile stretch from Chicago's South Side to suburban Wilmette in the north.

It was the seventh freak tidal wave, or seiche, on the Great Lakes in this century, and probably caused the most fatalities. Five persons were drowned near Holland, Mich., in a similar wave in 1938.

The wave, which followed a line squall, rolled in at 9:45 a.m.—more than an hour before the beaches normally start filling up with thousands of children and adult bathers. Most of the persons along the shore were fishermen, seated on piers or jetties that jut out into the lake.

"The wave came up all of a sudden, like a swell," said Jack Cina, who works in a hat shop at Chicago's North Side Montrose Harbor. Nearly a score of fishermen on jetties were washed off.

Fishermen at North Ave. pier saw the wall of water coming and started to run. Those closest to shore made it. The wave brushed off the others like a giant arm.

The Montrose and North Ave. beaches were the first to be hit. Park police flashed an alarm to all Chicago beaches. Police quickly cleared a score of fishermen from the 64th St. pier on the South Side. A few minutes later the wave washed high over that pier.

Lifeguards atop lookout posts sighted the wave coming at the Rogers Park beach on Chicago's far North Side. They blew whistles and shouted warnings through megaphones. The 50 to 100 bathers made it to shore in time. A six-foot high wave gushed over 100 feet of beach.

The squall caused a sharp change in air pressure. High pressure pushed the water down several feet like a giant hand. The water mounded up at the edges of the giant hand, causing the wave.

Afterwards, the lake surface began to rock like water in a creek. The big wave lasted only two to three minutes, but more than an hour after it struck an unusual wave still washed over piers, sending rescue workers scurrying back to shore.

Paving On Road To Farmerville Now Completed

FARMERVILLE, June 26 (Special) — The Louisiana Department of Highways has completed the paving construction on the Monroe-Farmerville highway in Union Parish. Fred Preaux, highway board chairman, declared today.

The project begins at the junction of State Route 474 near the Ouachita Parish line and extends north along State Route 15 to the junction with State Route 226, a distance of 6½ miles.

The job consisted of grading, shaping the roadway, installation of drainage structures, and an iron ore base course topped with three layers of asphalt cement surfacing 20 feet wide.

The work was performed by Reynolds and Williams of Shreveport at a cost of $76,536.

The inter-American defense treaty is a treaty for joint action by the American states in the defense of the security of the hemisphere. The first of these articles threatens the peace and security of the Western Hemisphere an "organ of consultation" shall meet at once to consider and deal with it.

The second article provides that the organ of consultation shall consist of the foreign ministers of the American nations.

There are 21 of these nations altogether, but State Department officials said that Guatemala has not ratified the Rio treaty.

closed for the day because of the churning waters.

Joe Jaworski, 18, whose father and fishing companion, John, 52, was drowned, said:

"It was terrible to see that wave coming at you, as far as the eye could see."

Paul Johnson, 43, who survived the wave that engulfed the Montrose Harbor pier, said: "I've been coming to the lake since I was a kid and I never saw anything like it—people screaming and hollering for help, swimming to shore and climbing the light house post."

Several fishermen instead of heading toward shore, ran to the end of the pier and climbed the light house post.

Police, lifeguards and volunteers dragged the waters at piers and beaches throughout the day searching for other possible victims.

Other bodies recovered, besides Jaworski's, were identified as those of Mrs. Mae Gabriel, 48, mother of 11 children, and Theodore Stempinski.

Earlier freak tidal waves today endangered about 100 fishermen at Michigan City, Ind., at the southeastern edge of Lake Michigan, and sent a wave 18 inches to two feet high surging onto the beach at Waukegan, 40 miles north of Chicago.

A seiche is an unusual occurrence on the Great Lakes. Two were recorded in the summer of 1952 causing some property damage along the Michigan and Indiana shore lines.

taken refuge in El Salvador's Embassy in Guatemala City.

The rebels said they had "annihilated Communist hordes" in conquering Chiquimula, 20 miles inside Guatemala, yesterday, but gave no definite figures.

The invasion forces then moved on toward Zacapa, one of the top strategic objectives of the rebels in the southeastern part of the country.

The battle with 1,500 regulars was said to be in progress between Chiquimula and Zacapa.

Women ran into the streets of Chiquimula to receive the rebel victors, the communists said, and "kissed the guns of the invaders."

The latest government announcements, meanwhile, continued to claim a smashing defeat of the invaders all along the line. It said invaders were being chased into the mountains after a victory at Puerto Barrios.

Rebel sources admitted that they were depending mainly on air strength to turn the tide in their favor—using handmade bombs in attacks on key government centers.

The government communique, covering operations up to 6 p.m. yesterday, claimed regular army troops were in control "on all fronts." The communique said the defeat at Puerto Barrios struck a heavy blow at the rebels, since the latter had hoped to use the port to bring in needed foodstuffs and war materiel.

The government also claimed a victory at Gualan, southwest of Puerto Barrios, on the only railroad between the Atlantic coast and the capital.

Both sides claimed possession of Chiquimula, where Col. Castillo Armas, the rebel leader, has said he had already set up a provisional government. The city is a rail center on the branch artery linking El Salvador with the main east-west Guatemalan railway line. The government communique said two were killed and 10 wounded in a rebel air attack on a troop train near Chiquimula yesterday. The same planes raided the capital later, dropping four one-hundred pound bombs. The communique said no serious damage was caused in the capital.

Authoritative sources here said Col. Cruz Wer has ordered all district governors to arrest known anti-Communist partisans of Col. Castillo Armas, hold them as hostages and "shoot the prisoners" in the event of an insurgent attack. These sources pointed to the rail center of Zapaca midway between Guatemala City and Puerto Barrios as "the focus of fighting" at the present time. A rebel air attack today stopped a Guatemalan army troop train bringing reinforcements to Zapaca, and an unknown number of army troops deserted to the rebel side, the informants claimed.

A direct bomb hit on an ammunition dump at Zapaca was reported to have knocked out the government garrison there, rebel sources said.

Informed sources said the rebels staked the outcome of the revolt on bombing. Leaflet barrages have failed to rally cautious Guatemalan peasants behind the rebel campaign. The anti-Communist invaders claim they have three P-47s and P-38s as well as "a cluster" of small planes at their disposal. They report marked success with bombs hand-fashioned by their ground crews out of dynamite sticks and a hand grenade bundled together. The pilots heave the bundle through the plane window and yank the grenade pin with a string to set off a delayed explosion.

Senate To Open

Republican named to succeed the late Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo.), is expected to be sworn in Monday.

Senate passage of the revision bill without any substantial change would be a big victory for President Eisenhower and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey.

Humphrey has called it the cornerstone of the administration's entire program. He asserts it will lead to many industrial expansion and modernization projects which will provide new jobs and stimulate business widely.

House Democrats organized a strong fight to put a 2½ billion individual income tax cut into the bill by a $100 increase in exemptions, and to knock out a provision for tax relief to stockholders on their dividend income. But this was defeated, 210-204.

George has said this same proposal will be offered in the Senate. He also has an alternative plan for a $20 tax cut to each taxpayer, figured as a credit on his return, which would be about a 1½ billion tax reduction.

The Democrats originally favored increases in exemptions by as much as $400, which would be a 7½ billion reduction. But they have cooled off on this plan considerably because of two factors: The leveling off of the business decline, and the worsening international situation particularly in Indochina.

The administration strongly opposes adding any general income tax cut to the bill, chiefly because of the revenue loss with the budget remaining unbalanced.

However, Williams said he did not think this was a very consistent position, since the omnibus revision measure already contains $1,477,000,000 in assorted tax cuts in the first year. These would benefit corporations and various groups of individuals, but there would be no cuts in any tax rates.

Offsetting these reductions is a provision to extend the 52 per cent corporation tax rate for a year which would bring in 1½ billion. Without this, the rate would fall to 47 per cent.

The Delaware senator said he was sure enactment of the tax cuts already in the bill would make it necessary to raise the national debt limit.

In sheer bulk, the bill is perhaps the biggest in congressional history. It contains 875 pages as passed by the House.

Primary Called To Fill Post Of Slain Nominee

BIRMINGHAM (AP) — The state Democratic Executive Committee today voted unanimously to call a special primary to nominate a successor to murdered Albert Patterson for attorney general.

The resolution calling for a primary was introduced by Nelson Fuller, Centerville lawyer.

The committee had the power to pick the nominee itself, but the 50 members of the 72-man committee present voted unanimously for a party-wide vote on a successor to Patterson. No opposition was expressed before the vote was taken.

John Patterson, son of the slain nominee and a Phenix City lawyer, has said that he will be a candidate for the post. He was in Washington conferring with FBI officials in an effort to get their help in solving the slaying of his father.

A Justice Department spokesman said the FBI couldn't step into the case unless a federal statute was involved.

The committee adopted a resolution to hold the first primary Tuesday, July 27, and a runoff if necessary Aug. 24.

Candidates would be required to qualify before July 1.

NSC Choir To Sing At Nat'l Elks Meeting

NATCHITOCHES, June 26 (Special)—The College Singers of Northwestern State College will sing at the National Elks Convention to be held in Los Angeles, July 4-8, Donald Glatfelter, chorus director, announced today.

Twenty-two appearances have been scheduled for the well-known 40-member choral group. Three concerts will be given before the audiences of the big Elks conclave.

Miss Mary Ann Walton, Bastrop senior music major at NSC, will be the accompanist for the group.

The choral group will leave Northwestern July 2 at 2 p.m. on a Trailways bus, and is scheduled to leave Los Angeles July 8 for the return trip.

French Will Send W. German Envoy

PARIS, June 26 —UP— Premier Pierre Mendes-France will send a personal envoy to West Germany to discuss rearmament of that nation under the European defense community plan, the foreign office announced Saturday.

Mendes-France will bypass the six nation talks EDC scheduled for Brussels next week. Instead he will follow the pattern of direct approach to France's problems pioneered last Wednesday when he went to Bern to see Red China's Premier Chou En-Lai on Indo-China.

The foreign office said a top official "speaking in the premier's name" will confer soon with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

'Government Girls' Patrons of Swank Establishment

Smash $1 Million Abortion Ring Near Washington

WARRENTON, Va., June 26—UP—Police announced Saturday they had smashed a $1 million-a-year abortion ring which specialized in six-hour, pick-up-and-delivery service in the nation's capital.

Many of the ring's patrons, police said, were government girls from Washington and its suburbs who paid from $400 to $450 for speedy abortions at headquarters of the ring, an isolated farm house in the plush "horsey set" country of the Blue Ridge mountain foothills.

A party of 30 state troopers and Fauquier county deputies raided the two-story, eight room house just south of Paris, Va., Friday midnight and flushed out 16 persons—seven alleged members of the ring and nine customers.

Police said Dr. George Thomas Strother, 54-year-old Brunswick, Md., surgeon, was caught performing an operation in a second floor rear bedroom.

Five of the nine women patients already had undergone abortions. Strother, charged with five counts of criminal abortion, was released on $5,000 bond. His wife, Ruth, who was acting as his nursing assistant, was charged with aiding and encouraging an abortion and was released on $2,500 bond.

Also released on $2,500 bond on the aiding and encouraging charge were:

Mrs. Ellen Grimes of Alexandria, Va., whom police described as "contact" woman for the ring. Her husband, Jessie L. Grimes, and her two sons-in-law, Melvin L.

Bainer, Alexandria, and Frank B. French, Washington, D. C., alleged chauffeurs for the ring.

Mary Boyer of Brunswick, Md., a "nursing assistant" to Strother. The patients on whom Strother had operated and the one whose operation was interrupted were held as material witnesses and were hospitalized here for examination. The three who had not undergone surgery were released.

Capt. G. M. Williams of the state police, said he would "not be surprised if the ring grossed as much as a million dollars a year." He said Mrs. Grimes had $1,200 in her purse and a search of the farm house turned up $2,400 more.

Williams told reporters that Grimes Bainer and French, as chauffeurs for the ring, picked up the patients in downtown Washington. He said they would meet the women about 8 p. m. and guarantee to return them to the city by 2 a. m.

He said four big cars, one equipped with shortwave radio, were parked near the farm house and were confiscated. He said the girl patients said they wore dark, heavy glasses on the trip from Washington so they could not later disclose where they had been.

A physician who accompanied the raiders, said Strother's "operating room" and procedure were "very sterile" and "only one woman in 1,000 might have had any trouble."

Rigid Controls Readied For Use In Case U. S. Is Caught In Another War

WASHINGTON, June 26 —UP—The administration is ready to rush wage, price, rent and materials controls through Congress in case of military intervention in Indo-China or some other national emergency, it was learned Saturday.

Not that the government expects an immediate war. But it will have the program ready if it is needed.

The controls study has been going on for more than a year. It has been leisurely, with experts being given plenty of time to reach conclusions.

The program aims primarily at preventing inflation and scarcities. The Labor Department is said to be working on manpower controls.

Glenwood J. Sherrard, assistant director of stabilization in the office of the President, is said to be armed with two bills — ready to go to the Capitol in an emergency. They are described as similar, but potentially more effective, than controls measures enforced in World War II.

First there would be a 90-day freeze on wages, prices, and other economic factors. These would be followed by specific orders in each industry.

The experts are still exploring the field of rationing. They hope that even if controls are necessary, rationing won't be. They denied that ration book already had been printed.

Officials told the United Press that Congress will not be asked to act unless President Eisenhower deems conditions so grave he will have to request a multi-billion dollar increase in the military budget. That will be the signal for fast action.

The Downhill Path

The position of the nation on this summer morning is precarious. There is no necessity in stating otherwise because such a statement would not be truthful. A glance at the headlines will demonstrate the situation.

The world revolution of the Marxists is running some 20 months ahead of schedule. Great gains have been made overseas and in this hemisphere. The South and Central American nations are no longer the friends they once were. There is a Communist state in Central America. Nationalistic feeling is being sponsored by the Communists in nearly every nation. Only the United States is busy attempting to settle the problems of all the other nations.

The Communists demonstrated their power when with one sentence by Vyacheslav Molotov, the French government was forced out of office. At home, in the United States, it's politics as usual with a new phenomena—great successes on the part of those who think not in terms usually connected with Americanism. The touted "new look" which was supposed to solve all problems has failed as many knew it would due to the simple fact that it has never been put into effect and will not be. British leaders are in complete control of the situation, selling to the Communists on one hand while attempting to "advise" the U. S. on the other.

Many Democrat congressmen and senators, instead of helping the situation, seem to "sit on the sidelines" doing nothing, every now and then, tripping the players who are carrying the ball for their team. These individuals are joined by numerous Republicans who, as Mr. Parrish of the Chicago Tribune demonstrated, have their roots on one side, while growing on the other.

The United States today is the embodiment of all which the Communist hearts desire. Spiritually and morally, it is on the decline. If you doubt that statement, consult the divorce records, the jail records and the growing problem of teen age delinquency over the past few years. Instead of preaching the Gospel, some ministers have become politicians in the pulpit. Dr. William Graham has demonstrated what honest religious teaching can accomplish and has further shown the British people that there is still such a thing as a non-political minister.

Speaking from a political standpoint, the first fringes of the Spengler predicted "mobocracy" are showing through the shadows. Oswald Spengler, the great German teacher and philosopher, in his "Decline of the West" has demonstrated that each civilization is in many ways, quite similar to the other. Organizing a civilization into "seasons," he shows clearly that they go through stages of progression which are very akin. Those who have never read "Decline of the West" owe it to themselves to at least look this piece of prediction over carefully.

The Western Civilization, Spengler states, is not in the Spring, the Summer or even the Autumn, it is well advanced into the Winter. The Western Civilization is faced with a resurgence of the Orient. Marxism, partially based on Oriental philosophy, seems to be sweeping the Earth.

Instead of denouncing this barbarous anti-God creed, many ministers, officials of government and professors apologize for it and in some cases embrace its philosophy. Spengler, among others, predicted this phenomena and called it the last stage of the Western Civilization's decline.

The people of the United States glory in their materialism. As a nation, the U. S. is fast losing its sense of values. What degeneracy and horror one can see on film and on glass, becomes the mode of the day. Could it be that in the face of destruction, the nation is enjoying a "last fling"? Instead of consulting the Holy Bible, which after all, is still the most beautifully written and most accurate history book (as well as being a book of astounding predictions) the people must consult slick magazines which espouse the cause of collectivism.

Instead of giving careful thought to one's next move, the national attitude seems to be, "go ahead, hang the consequences." Instead of worshipping at the altar of God and begging His forgiveness, the national attitude seems to say, "why worry, there's always another day." Instead of home and family, formerly the greatest institution in the nation, the people, many of them have switched their allegiance to the cocktail party and the marriage of convenience which decrees that children are only a bother. Perhaps the nation has "gone modern." Is this really "progress"?

The nation is like a snowball going down the hill. As it falls, it picks up speed and momentum. As one folkway is discarded as "reactionary" and obsolete, others fall. In a case of this sort, degeneracy is not compounded in addition, it is multiplied by the square root. Can it be that such a basis or a foundation is one on which the nation can depend? The record of other civilizations and other nations clearly points to the otherwise.

The followers of the anti-God realize that success is attainable only with the destruction of the moral concepts of a nation. Karl Marx put this in his basic tenets. Do you honestly believe that the American people today are not being subjected to a deliberate perversion of their concept of God and His commandments? Great goodness, even the marriage vows are desecrated, rent asunder and forgotten. The Chinese Communists are shipping narcotics into this nation by the boatload. The Twin Cities have begun to see how close to their home is this terrible threat.

It has been said that human nature was born wounded, not essentially corrupted. Unfortunately, the attitude of many seems to be "if I can get away with it—it's right." In the past, God, to whom salvation of souls is the most important, civilization being secondary, has punished civilizations. Babylonian history is a good case in point. There is a just punishment for every evil. The history of civilizations demonstrates that God has punished them because they forgot Him in their wealth and luxury. When one moral law is excused by the ministry, all are broken.

Is the U. S. picking up momentum on the downgrade? It would be a good idea to consider the situation this Sunday morning.

LaSalle Parish

Plan for tomorrow, yesterday has gone.

In a recent statement by several business and civic leaders of La Salle parish the economic standpoint for the parish was reported to be "bright." Taking the spotlight as far as new La Salle industries are concerned is the tourist and sportsman's trade. For years the numerous lakes and excellent hunting areas of the parish were mediums which the citizenry used, but as far as turning them into industry and growth for the parish the idea was never really considered. Today La Salle parish realizes the excellent heritage of nature and has set about to make the most of it for advancement.

Sportsmen throughout the nation proclaim the area as "the sportsman's paradise."

Taking it's place along with the tourist and sportsman's trade is the oil industry. A well known oil official said recently "there is still a lot of oil to be found in La Salle parish." The official definitely predicted a deeper producing horizon for the area.

Stressing the large income derived in the parish from timber and related forestry products an active reforestation project is underway in La Salle to build the industry to greater heights in the future.

Not to be forgotten is the place of agriculture in the economic life of La Salle. Diversified farming, adoption of new agricultural procedures and the increasing number of people taking an interest in farming, shows that agriculture will continue to play an important part in the future of the parish.

The State Senate And Civil Defense

The Louisiana State Senate has given serious consideration to slashing the funds of the Office of Civil Defense by a third. The allotted amount is one hundred fifty thousand dollars. The Senate calls for a slash of fifty thousand.

It is not necessary to go into the world situation any more than calling for a glance at the headlines to note that the U. S. is in danger from the Russian imperialists.

The State of Louisiana has at least two, perhaps three vital target areas. Baton Rouge and New Orleans. The last CD test was, in this state, a dismal failure to say the least.

Fortunately (perhaps unfortunately in this case), Civil Defense has been left to the individual states as a part of their own programs. The State of Louisiana needs more Civilian Defense equipment. It needs, radios, trucks, paid workers. These it cannot have under the present circumstances. Already operating on a slim budget, the CD office will be completely demoralized should that slim appropriation be demolished and cut.

It is hoped that the Senators will consider the precariousness of the situation and at least, give the Louisiana Office of Civil Defense enough money on which to operate.

The lives of these Senators someday might be saved through the assistance of General Woolley's Louisiana CD workers.

Dope In Monroe

Because of the apparent scope of the recently uncovered illegal dope operation in Monroe, it is time to summon the Ouachita Parish Grand Jury to supplement and complete the good work of local law enforcement officials.

No defendants pleading guilty have testified under oath. They have volunteered information before the District Attorney, and he, in turn, has filed Bills of Information in lieu of an indictment by the Grand Jury. This is one of the methods by which a person is formally charged with a crime.

The Grand Jury should be able to get more information than law officers because witnesses before that body are subject to the perjury law. In the case of depositions before the District Attorney, they are not.

Officers involved in the investigation have done an excellent job, but the Grand Jury can go still further.

Individuals who appear to be involved cannot be approached by law officers because the evidence of information connecting them with the crime is so meager that officials would jeopardize their own position. However, the all-powerful Grand Jury could pursue every lead to an ultimate conclusion.

There is a Grand Jury currently serving a six-month term. Could it not be summoned to search out every possible link in an apparently mushrooming narcotics investigation in Monroe?

All methods should be used to rid the community of such a vicious situation.

'Heads I Win: Tails You Lose'

The rapidly worsening situation in Indo-China is made worse by the seemingly abject surrender of the French Premier (and Foreign Minister) Mendes-France to Chou En Lai, the Chinese Communist trouble shooter who was sent to Geneva to make certain that Western unity was merely a gasp of hopeful if untrue breath.

Unknowningly, he was assisted by the British who sold out the United States in that terrible diplomatic miasma. The sending of American troops to Indo-China is out of the question. A million American troops could never win a war there.

Asians must fight Asians. Americans in Indo-China (with the present feeling of the people) would be regarded as protectors of imperialism. Yet, the French seem ready to turn the place over to the Communists lock, stock and barrel.

Indo-China cannot be lost to the free world. The loss of that vital nation would immediately destroy the defense line in Asia. It would outflank Burma, Thailand (Siam) and India. It would put the Communists next door to Indonesia, a nation unsure of itself at this juncture. It would seriously endanger the Philippines.

Yet, what is the solution?

General Chennault repeated again on Wednesday afternoon, his statement that both President Rhee and Generalissimo Chiang should be armed to the teeth as a deterrent to Chinese Communist expansion. The Morning World has charged specifically that the policy of the administration is to "tolerate" Chiang and Rhee. If the Koreans of

Oak Grove Mayor Critical Of Parish Page

Oak Grove, La.
Mrs. Maude Van Fossen,
Lake Providence, La.,
Dear Mr. Van Fossen:

We were very disappointed in the article on Oak Grove and West Carroll Parish which appeared in your paper on June 15th. There were so many inaccuracies in the article. I cannot understand why the copy was not given to someone who knows the facts, for correction before it was published.

In the first place, a picture of Mr. O. E. Huey as superintendent of schools in West Carroll appeared on the page. Mr. Huey has not been superintendent of schools for the past several years.

In the second place, you listed the 1950 assets of the two banks in Oak Grove which was certainly improper. In 1954, the 1954 assets should be listed and anyone could have secured this information in five minutes time. There are three banks in West Carroll, not two.

In the article is a statement that the Oak Grove Masonic Lodge sponsors many dances, parties, picnics, etc. I have been a resident of Oak Grove for 37 years and a member of the Oak Grove Masonic Lodge for nearly 30 years and to my knowledge it has never at any time sponsored a dance during all those years.

Perhaps there is such a sport in the parish as "Jug Fishing" and "an annual gar rodeo" but, if so, the participants have done a good job of concealing it from me for I have never heard of it and I think I am as well. If not better, informed about what is going on in West Carroll Parish as the average person.

The article states that Kilbourne and Pioneer are unincorporated towns. They are both incorporated.

There is no such band as West Carroll Parish High School Band. There is an Oak Grove High School Band.

There are just a few of the errors. I found many more. Also, in my opinion, much of the article was given to history which is of little interest to anyone at the present time whereas a great many facts of interest relative to the progressiveness and development of Oak Grove and West Carroll Parish during recent years and at the present time were entirely omitted.

If I had had any idea that the article would be as inaccurate as it was and so completely out of date I would have gladly volunteered to read and correct it and bring it up to date. Many of the things we are most proud of in West Carroll Parish have been developed during the past four years and the article ended four years ago, with no mention anywhere of any improvement that has been made within the past four years.

I think you owe it to Oak Grove and West Carroll Parish to correct this article by at least bringing it up to date up to 1954.

DONALD B. FISKE.

Correspondent Replies To Critical Letter

Lake Providence, La.
Mr. Donald B. Fiske,
Oak Grove, Louisiana.

Dear Mr. Fiske:
I want to take this opportunity to congratulate you upon your reelection as mayor of Oak Grove. A third term in office is proof of your interest in the town and the welfare of the people.

Mr. Fiske, I was made somewhat unhappy by the receipt of your letter to the Morning World. I must admit at the beginning that it was somewhat unfair to the people of West Carroll to have an outsider come in and try to write up an article of their history and way of life, of which the writer knew absolutely nothing.

I have had your friendship from the day you walked into my shop to buy a poinsettia, and that friendship I plan to keep. If I have to go to the bar for it. Right here, I do want to say that you did offer any assistance that you could give and that I might need, in the writing of the article. For what I again want to say, "Thank You."

However, let me say that I did go to the sheriff's office, the Clerk of Court's office, the County Agent's office, the school board office (where I did get most of my information), and to the public school and contacted three of the teachers.

President Rhee were to attack in the North while Chiang's Nationalists attacked in the South, it is the conclusion of General Chennault (and other military leaders) that Mao's Communists could not maintain two fronts successfully.

All fighting in Indo-China would have to be halted as the Communists would of necessity, need to save their Asian heartland.

Unless something along these lines is done, and done in the very near future, the loss of Indo-China is seen as an accomplished fact.

The Communists are still in command of the world situation, all statements in the U. S., Britain and France to the alternative.

To Kiss You Once
PLEASE, let me kiss your lips tonight... If just this one time only... So we may not meet again... My heart will be less lonely... You may not want me in your arms... You may not cherish me... But just one kiss would bless my dreams... For all eternity... Please, let me draw your lips to mine... If only for a second... As I have always been your slave... Wherever you have beckoned... I will not ask for anything... Beyond that little kiss... The token of affection, dear... That you will never miss... A kiss that may be nothing more... Than just a dying ember... But something that my heart will love... And evermore remember.

Public Forum—Voice Of All The People

Tuscaloosa, Ala.
Editor, Morning World:

I have recently read in the press regarding your editorial concerning our national government's paramount effort in a contaminated conspiracy and stooping to such tricks as midnight robbery and thievery and their vicious actions with their thirst for "gain" from the unorganized or "loosely allied" groups of American taxpayers, using one of their customary methods to scoop the dire needs of many honorable and upright citizens, trimming these citizens' living standards below the level of the Communist in Russia. These parasites will soon vote themselves another salary raise and I presume they will also vote it tax exempt.

As a newspaper editor, I believe you owe your profession and your readers the facts as you printed them, but most of all, I cherish the honorable step you have made and would be glad for you to continue them as there are many daily newspapers which are beginning to look into the stolidity of the social security program and are teaching the victims more about how it will later overthrow our republic and build a Fascism or a Nazism, one to their liking.

To Wake Sleeping People

Tulsa, Oklahoma.
Editor, Morning World:

Have just received Borger, Texas News-Herald containing your editorial of June 4th. It is one of the finest articles we have seen and needs to be read by many.

I belong to a group, or rather a web of other states in the Union. We write, exchange literature relative to our work, all working for the same thing, which, obviously is in line with yours, to wake sleeping people up to what is happening to us. Possibly I should not admit it, but we, all way-back, old-time, dyed-in-the-wool Democrats, voted the Republican ticket in '52, for like many others, we felt a change was imperative, after the then 20 years past. However, we saw nothing to vote for in the Democratic fold—nor do we yet. May the good Lord forgive us, but along with it, send us something worth voting for.

Our Tulsa group sent a short note and some of our best literature, we had received from different quarters to every Senator and Representative (325). We got a good many replies, some nice, some nasty, some neither.

MRS. AMBIE C. MITCHELL.

Our Worst Enemy—England

Bastrop, La.
Editor, Morning World:

I have just read your editorial in the Sunday 20th edition of the Morning World. I am 100 per cent in agreement with you; at this time the situation is really something to think about. But, after all, there is nothing we can do about it. If anyone will carefully consider, we must admit that those of us who steadfastly hold to the principles of a Democratic way of life are as "derek" as sea. The time is now come when the great crisis which Abraham Lincoln foresaw and proclaimed to the people shortly before his death is now upon us. He proclaimed, "I see in the near future, a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. Corporations have been enthroned, the money power will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudice of the people until the wealth is aggregated in a few hands and the Republic is destroyed." If one will only calmly think for a few moments they can clearly see this deluge is upon us.

You must admit, or else retract much of your writings, that Senator McCarthy is the only man in Washington who has the intestinal fortitude to stand up and fight when the whole force of government, including the Executive, Congress, and the Judiciary are 100 per cent against him. As you have shown in your writings that our Republican Democratic policies have become so thoroughly assimilated and homogenized in Socialism and Communism that Washington has become a one way thoroughfare to Moscow, and London.

England is America's worst enemy. England has given the American people trouble for more than two hundred years; whereas Russia hasn't gotten started good yet. Britain is responsible for most all of our internal trouble. The sequence of American history clearly shows Britain's unrelenting determination to recapture the U. S. It repeatedly tried to conquer the states by force of arms but failed in every attempt; so they resorted to the never failing force of money power; that time they got us. We can't rightly say that we are Americans anymore; we are British subjects. If you disagree: Just take a look at the billions of dollars that we are pouring into the British treasury every year. The truth is a precious jewel. It is a custom to keep the most valuable things hidden. For that reason, the truth so seldom appears and many people don't understand how it is that we are British peasants.

I understand that President Eisenhower and Churchill are to meet soon. It's everybody's guess that they will arrange for a big three meet with Malenkov. If they do, afterward we may expect anything to happen. But there is one thing sure: our Democracy is gone and unless we can recover it through State Supremacy guaranteed to us by the 4th, 9th and 10th amendments to the constitution we will never enjoy it anymore.

The "Lone Ranger"

Fl. Lauderdale, Fla.
Editor, Morning World:

The air is literally filled with race, creed, color these days. Even the "Lone Ranger" is letting his race, creed, color drag in the mud. Of course, this is supposed to be a real tear - jerker, but as far as I can see, people have stopped shedding tears and started to gag on this silly repetition.

I suggest that these brain-washers change their mournful dirge to "Mongrelization or Bust" or aren't they able to stand the truth even once in their lives.

Political Time

West Monroe, La.
Editor, Morning World:

As a local citizen and also an ardent TV viewer, I would like to make a statement as to the local TV programming.

We realize that the TV stations receive good pay from politicians for time on the air. However, the viewer also has rights as he also pays a good sum for his TV set and the servicing of same.

Friday, June 18, quite a group of people gathered at my home to see our favorite programs (which were scheduled). These were cancelled to give time to politicians. I turned my set off and we all went to a movie. To us, these TV programs were important and needed to say, the politicians who caused them to be cancelled will not receive the votes of our group. There must be better times to sell these politicians to gain votes.

Animals Need Care

Monroe, La.
Editor, Morning World:

Just a short while ago I was invited by some friends to go to a fish fry out at Bernstein Park, and of course we just had to visit the animals. But the sight that met our eyes was sickening. Right then and there we made a list of things that the park needed terribly. The list is as follows:

- (1) Sufficient care and handling of animals.
- (2) Sufficient food and water.
- (3) Larger cages.
- (4) Sanitary care for animals.
- (5) Cages and animals both carry disease.
- (6) White mice covered by small red ones.
- (7) Cage barring animals covered with fleas.

I think the people of Monroe should do something about this situation.

Younger Boys Get Big Thrill At YMCA Camp

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. day camp for younger boys ages 6-12 is experiencing a successful first period. Day campers are enjoying such activities as crafts, hiking, nature study, devotionals, story telling, singing, athletics, group games, educational trips, riflery, archery, swimming, boating, fishing, and overnight camping under experienced, well trained, leadership. Eighty boys from the Twin Cities are participating in this youth program sponsored by the Twin Cities Young Men's Christian Association.

Present plans call for an overnight camp for all Y.M.C.A. day campers on Wednesday night. Tom Hicks has consented to let the Y.M.C.A. use his camp on Cheniere Lake for this overnight campout. Campers will leave from Forsythe Park about 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday and return about 3 p.m. on Thursday. An impressive Indian ritual and council fire program will be held for all campers on Wednesday night.

There will be a special parent's day program on Friday beginning at 2 p.m. in Forsythe Park. All parents, relatives and friends are cordially invited to attend. All swimming awards will be presented along with individual awards to the championship athletic group, the best all round camping group, and to the most outstanding camper.

In addition to the camping program during the summer months, the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. will offer an excellent year-round character building program for youth. It will consist of Indian Guides, Gra-Y Clubs, Jr. Hi-Y Clubs, Hi-Y Clubs, athletic teams and special interest groups. This program will begin with the opening of school in the fall. The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. will also initiate a progressive adult program in the very near future.

While the first camping period for Day Camp is filled to capacity there remain a few available spaces for the second period beginning July 6 and running through July 16th. Any parent interested in registering their son for this outdoor Christian program should phone the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A., 5-2333 for reservations.

City Council In West Monroe To Be Sworn In Wed.

The new city council in West Monroe will be sworn into office Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in West Monroe city council, according to City Clerk Leon L. Wood, one of the newly-elected aldermen.

To be sworn in are Mayor J. Allen Norris, re-elected incumbent, Wood, C. E. Ponder, Roy W. Cash, Amos Hood, and Alton P. Burkett.

All six received their commissions last week from Wade O. Martin Jr., secretary of state. John F. McCormick, a notary public, will swear them in.

According to Wood, they will officially be office holders July 1 and probably will hold their first council meeting on July 12, since the first Monday in July—the 5th—will be a legal holiday.

He said the council members would probably meet and adjourn on July 5 without taking any official action.

Explosion Rips House Apart And Two Are Injured

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Two persons were injured, one critically, when an explosion rocked a two-story residence in the downtown section today.

Part of the house was demolished by the blast, which ripped out an entire section of a wall, flung debris several yards, and blew out windows of neighboring homes. Johnnie Smith, Negro, sent to the House by the Gulf Coast Realty Co., to check a report of leaking gas, was in critical condition from second and third degree burns. The explosion occurred just as he entered the building.

Mrs. Mary B. White, 55, received injuries when she was thrown from her bed in an adjoining home by the impact of the explosion.

A blaze resulting from the explosion was put out by the Mobile Fire Department.

Liquor Still On Lawn Of Courthouse

JONESBORO, June 26 (Special)—On the Jackson Parish Courthouse lawn these days is a small still. Felix Reed, Negro, is charged with operating and owning the still in which he made home brew out of chops and sugar, about 100 yards from the state highway in the Gansville Community just across the Winn Parish line.

City police found Reed peddling liquor in the Negro section of Jonesboro last Saturday night and with the help of the Jackson and Winn Parishes Sheriff's Departments traced Reed to his still and apprehended him.

Jackson Parish authorities confiscated another still near Chatham approximately five weeks ago.

The still consisted of an old iron barrel lying on a small iron table of old stove legs, and a pipe reaching to another iron barrel sitting on the ground.

The quality or the quantity of the home brew charged to Reed was not reported.

Sen. Ellender's Patronage Record Is Hit By Ellis

OAKDALE, La., —UP— Candidate Frank B. Ellis charged in a speech here Saturday that Sen. Allen J. Ellender has "failed miserably to give any explanation of his failure to obtain any major federal offices for this state."

Ellis said that nearly all of the major regional offices of federal government are located principally in Fort Worth, Dallas or Atlanta.

"The loss to Louisiana as the result has been tremendous both in wages and prestige," said Ellis, Democratic National committee-man.

Ellis also claimed that Ellender has "done little or nothing" to push the proposed development of the Red River Valley, the Overton Canal near Shreveport, the Morgan Canal short-cut to the Gulf, and the Alexandria tidewater seaway from New Orleans to the Gulf.

In his rallies at Oakdale, Glenmora, Oberlin and Eunice Saturday, Ellis said that he feared a recession would result if we do not build and maintain the income of the wage earner and the farmer.

"We must not return to the days of the Hoover administration when labor was paid 15 cents an hour and crude oil sold for 10 cents a barrel," he said. "A great industrial expansion is now underway in the South. We must develop this trend so that industry will have confidence in our government and faith in the future."

Ellis also called attention to Ellender's voting record on the wage and hour act in which he said the senior senator from Louisiana had offered three amendments which would have nullified a minimum wage increase from 40 to 75 cents an hour.

Ellis was scheduled to speak Saturday night at an Elks club rally in Alexandria.

Youth Acting As Judge In Race Of Teenagers Killed

The victim, Christopher Lato, was one of four youths who were acting as judges of the race.

The four were standing at an intersection when one of the cars smashed into the rear of the other, sending one catapulting into the judges.

The injured, all of Metairie, were Walter O'Conner, 22, fractured skull and left leg; Norman Coste 17, fractured leg, possible fractured nose and lacerations; Charles Baradel, 16, fractured skull, possible fractured chest and lacerations; and Lanny Cazaux, 16, lacerations of the leg.

The two contestants, Lyle E. Trabeaux, 17, and David Walker, 18, were booked with negligent injury and reckless driving.

Mother Is Charged With Slaying Husband, Then Suing Him For Divorce

AMESBURY, Mass., June 26 — UP — A pretty mother of three small daughters was arrested Saturday on a charge of murdering her husband on Palm Sunday and then suing him for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment 23 days later.

Mrs. Lorraine Clark, 28, was arrested at nearby Lawrence after being questioned all night about the death of her husband, Melvin W. Clark Jr., who was sighted in a West Newbury marsh June 2 by a woman bird watcher gazing through field glasses.

Investigators said the nature of Clark's wounds and the method used in disposing of the body made it almost certain more than one person was involved in the crime. They said their investigation was continuing.

"Mrs. Clark gave us a signed statement this morning and then I placed her under arrest," said Essex County District Attorney Hugh A. Gregg.

"The arrest was made after we rechecked everything in the case, and this was just the final questioning."

Mrs. Clark pleaded innocent at her arraignment in district court. Judge Martin F. Connelly ordered her to be held in jail without bail pending action by the Essex county grand jury, which meets Sept. 13. She waived examination.

Clark, a 3135-a-week electronics plant foreman, disappeared April 11, and police believe he was slain that day at his Lake Attitash cottage. He was shot twice in the head, beaten, stabbed with an ice pick and his ankles had been bound with electrician's wire.

Detectives said they believed the body was dumped into the Merrimack River, which borders the marshland where it was found badly decomposed several weeks later.

Twenty-three days after Clark's death, Mrs. Clark filed suit for divorce. She told police her husband beat her shortly before he disappeared and in her suit she listed his whereabouts as "unknown."

Mrs. Clark asked custody of their three children, Marlene, 8, Sally, 5, and Maurine, 3.

Wild Blowing Well Poses Fire Threat

JAL, N. M., June 26 — UP — A wildly blowing gas well was capped early Saturday a mile south of here but blew in again an hour after the shooting gas stopped, and danger the well would ignite mounted every minute.

Houston, Tex., oil and gas well fire-fighter Paul Adair, son-in-law of the famed Myron Kinley, capped the wildcat, which has raged out of control since last Tuesday. The tremendous pressure of the gas popped off the cap shortly after he completed the job.

The well, the American Republic No. 1 Federal Wildcat, has poured out some 60 million cubic feet of gas daily since it blew in, the Jal office of the Anderson-Prichard Oil Co. reported.

Fall Of Raindrop Can Be Detected On Seismographs

TULSA, Okla., June 26 (AP) — One of the oil industry's most vital jobs is that of the seismic crews who sound the earth's rock strata for structures which might bear petroleum.

They work with precisely engineered, highly sensitive equipment with records the vibrations set off by a dynamite-created "earthquake."

Their instruments must be delicate enough to detect a sound as soft as a raindrop on the ground, rugged enough to withstand extremes in weather and topographic conditions.

They are the result of painstaking research by engineers and careful manufacture by skilled machinists and wiring men in such laboratories as Carter Oil Co. maintains here. In it custom-made seismograph equipment is made for use all over the world solely by affiliates of the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

Last year $750,000 was spent equipping or servicing 27 seismic crews for Imperial, Creole, International, Standard Vacuum and Carter.

A complete set of seismic equipment includes geophones, amplifiers, telephone and inter-connecting cables, cameras and communication instruments. The laboratory also makes accessories for cable-handler trucks, "shooting" trucks and special drills.

Nearly every piece must be custom-designed to meet the challenge of climate and topography where it is used.

In one section of the laboratory equipment is "tropicalized" to work in the tropics' intense heat and humidity. Other instruments are tested in a "cold chamber" to determine if they will operate properly in an arctic winter's sub-zero temperatures.

Their toughest assignment, say Carter's engineers, was designing equipment for Indonesia. It had to be sufficiently stout to function in that hot climate, so delicate it could pick up the faintest vibration, light enough to be carried by natives for miles over narrow, treacherous catwalks fashioned of tree trunks.

Ordinarily a full seismic outfit weighs several hundred pounds. For Indonesia no one package could weigh more than 50 pounds. Communications equipment also is of great importance to the crews, particularly in Indonesia where jungle and water make personal contact almost impossible.

Radio-telephone is the only way of keeping in touch in that area. A "bar" geophysicist recently back from there reported one field operator's foreman hadn't seen his most distant dynamite shooter for six months—even though he was only three miles away.

Flood Danger In Iowa Subsides; Damage Is High

DES MOINES, June 26 (AP) — The flooding of the Des Moines river, defeated in its mightiest thrust at this capital city of Iowa, rolled southward toward Ottumwa tonight.

Ottumwa, city of 34,000 in southeastern Iowa, expected to handle without major damage the arrival of the crest there tomorrow night. Col. Nelson LeClair Jr., district U.S. Army engineer at Rock Island, Ill., advised Gov. William S. Beardsley that barring a fateful turn in the weather Iowa's 10-day flood crisis is about over.

LeClair estimated flood damage in Iowa thus far at 15 million dollars. Hubert McCurley, American Red Cross official, said 585 homes in Des Moines and in Polk county outside the city suffered flood damage. He said 117 had major damage or were destroyed completely.

As the Des Moines River here fell below 26 feet—more than four feet under the all-time crest which arrived Thursday—most of the 1,300 families which had moved out in a precautionary evacuation—were permitted to return home. Major Des Moines levees held throughout the flood.

Film Actress And Brother Of Actor Are Wed

HOLLYWOOD, June 26 — UP — Film Actress Wanda Hendrix and wealthy James Stack were married Saturday in a lavish garden ceremony attended by more than 400 society and movie colony guests.

Miss Hendrix, 26, divorced three years ago from war hero Audie Murphy, and Stack, 38, brother of actor Bob Stack, repeated their vows to Dr. Ernest Holmes of the Science of Mind Church in a brief ritual at the Bel-Air mansion of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Betzi Stack.

Stack, member of a prominent southern California family, slipped a diamond-studded platinum wedding band on the finger of Miss Hendrix, who gave up her film career to be his bride.

Guests invited to one of the most elaborate Hollywood weddings of the year included Tyrone Power, Linda Christian, Bing Crosby, Alan Ladd, Joel McCrea and Ann Blyth.

725 Students Enroll

Record Shattered At Northeast For Summer Session

Twenty-seven parishes are represented in Northeast State's summer school enrollment of 725, a record registration total for the institution's summer terms. Registration figures show students from three states besides Louisiana and two enrollees from Venezuela S.A.

Parishes include some which formerly have not been represented at the college and a few which have had limited numbers, according to the registrar's office.

The enrollment includes 625 students and 100 pupils in the Campus Laboratory School, which is being operated as a part of the teacher training program under the teacher education department.

Ouachita Parish leads in number of students, with 346 in adult enrollment. Richland parish ranks second with 53 enrollees; Morehouse third, with 47, and Franklin fourth, with 44.

Other parishes include: Caddo, Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, Claiborne, East Baton Rouge, East Carroll, Evangeline, Grant, Jackson, LaSalle, Lincoln, Madison, Orleans, Rapides, Tensas, Union, West Carroll and Winn.

States, in addition to Louisiana, which are represented comprise Arkansas, Illinois and Texas.

Women exceed men by a big majority in summer enrollment, with 398 in the former classification and 227 in the latter.

The list of veterans continues to play a significant factor in registration. The summer school group includes 66 Korean veterans and seven who saw service in World War II, all of whom are attending college under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Twenty-four veterans are paying their own fees. Two women are included in the total of 97 veterans.

In-service teachers enrolled this summer show 62 who are candidates for a degree, 34 who are working toward a teacher's certificate and two who are studying for the extension of a certificate.

3 Young Men And Girl Admit They Burned Crosses

ORANGE, Tex., June 26 (AP) — Three young men and a girl have admitted they are the "Moonlighters" who have been burning crosses and tossing anti-Negro notes in this area, police said today.

Officers quoted the four as saying they did it as a prank to get publicity. The girl said she kept a scrapbook of newspaper stories about their activities and said they threw most of their notes into the yard of Mrs. Mary Alice Lakey, a reporter for the Orange Daily Leader, to make sure they got publicity.

Officers said they questioned the four, gave them a good lecture and then let them go. They said there was no law under which the group could be prosecuted.

The youths were described as 22, 19 and 18 years old. The girl is 18. Many of the notes were signed "The Moonlighters." In one of them the Moonlighters claimed 400 members in the Gulf Coast area.

When police asked the four if they hadn't thought some innocent persons might have been killed because of their activities, one of the four replied: We thought some Negroes might get killed, but we never realized that some white people might die, too."

Health Council Sets Fluoridation Report Monday

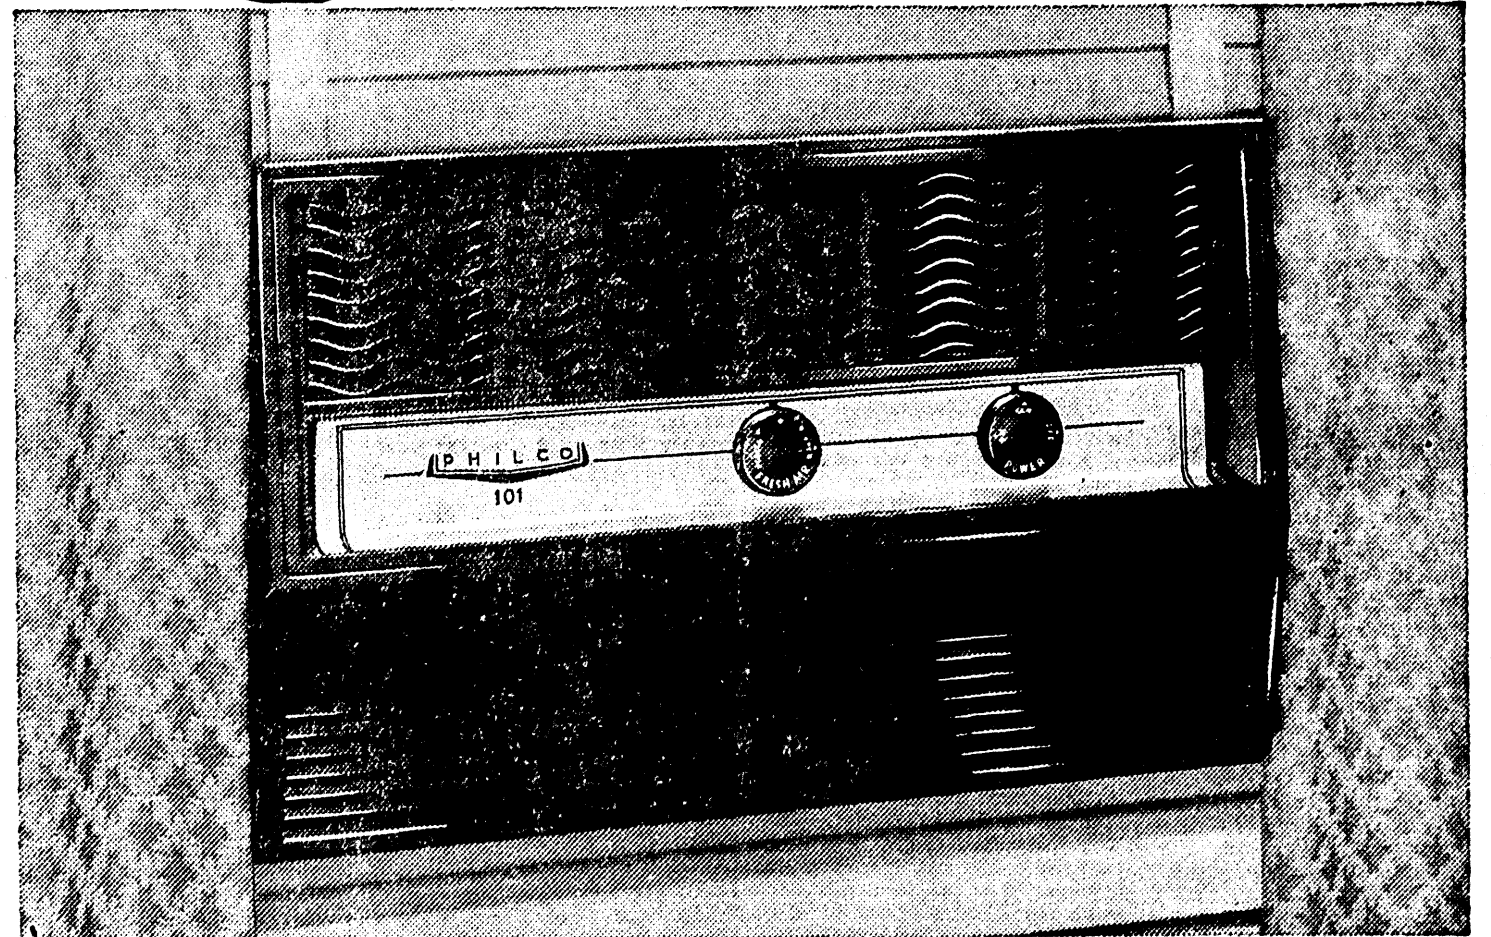

A meeting of the Ouachita Parish Health Council will be held Monday at 1:30 at the Virginia Hotel according to Mrs. Paul Thompson, acting president.

An important report from the fluoridation committee will read the meeting's agenda. Plans and arrangements for the state convention to be held November 11 and 12 will be discussed along with the health tax.

All members and interested persons are urged to attend this meeting.

Ike Camp Rallies Farm Program Showdown Battle

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Administration forces rallied today for a party-splitting battle in the House next week in a showdown effort to save the Eisenhower farm program.

Republican leaders were prepared for a fight with farm-state members of their own party for the President's politically explosive program of variable farm price supports, designed to cut down the multibillion dollar surpluses now glutting government warehouses.

House Speaker Martin of Massachusetts predicted an administration victory when the time comes for roll call vote next Friday, with enough Republicans and Northern big city Democrats joining together to defeat the high-support sections of the bill approved by the House Agriculture Committee yesterday.

This one - package measure, backed by the farm state members, would extend for another year the existing rigid high price supports on basic crops—and hike even higher present government aids to the surplus-ridden dairy industry.

"In my judgment," Martin told reporters, "the House will defeat the high-support provisions and support the administration's flexible program."

Republican expectation of support from Northern Democrats was challenged by Democratic House Leader Rayburn.

"I think 90 per cent of parity supports will be sustained in the House by a big majority," Rayburn said.

"I feel confident at least 75 per cent of the Democrats in the House will vote for it."

The House bill calls for another year of farm price supports at 90 per cent of parity—party being a "fair" price determined by law in relation to the cost of things farmers must buy.

Rayburn's forecast of 75 per cent of Democratic backing of high price supports was lower than some other Democratic estimates. One Democratic floor leader estimated 90 per cent of the Democrats would vote for the 90 per cent of parity and against the Eisenhower program.

In the face of these predictions, it appeared that the final House outcome might be decided by those northern Democrats from city districts where housewives view farm problems in the light of grocery store prices.

Republican leaders, aware of the approaching November elections, were ready to make consumer prices a major issue in next week's farm price battle.

GOP strategists are expected to force a roll call vote to put members on record on the price issue. They expect city Democrats to go over to the Republican side in such a show down.

The test is expected to come Thursday, when the bill is opened to amendment and administration leaders move to repeal entirely the high support price features.

President Eisenhower has called for repeal of the present system of rigid high supports on basic crops, and replacing it with a flexible system providing government supports at between 75 and 90 per cent of parity.

Flexible supports would tend to move up in time of low farm output to encourage production and down in time of over production.

Unless Congress extends the present rigid supports at 90 per cent of parity, the flexible provisions of a law passed in 1949 will automatically take effect at the end of this year.

Both of the big labor unions, the AFL and CIO, are backing the program of continued high supports.

Ellender Asserts U. S. Negligent In Latin America

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Sen. Ellender (D-La.) said today this country "must not become panicky" about the Communist infiltration of Guatemala and anti-United States demonstrations in other Latin-American nations.

Instead, the senator called for expanded trade and assistance to South American nations, particularly through "enlightened private enterprise" to raise living, economic and education standards.

"We are reaping the benefits of a generation of unnecessary neglect of our friend to the south of us," Ellender said in an address prepared for radio broadcast, over WNOE, New Orleans.

"I feel certain that again, freedom will win over communism," he added.

Ellender was among the 69 senators who rushed through a formal resolution yesterday warning "international communism" that it will meet vigorous opposition of all American states in its efforts to interfere in this hemisphere.

Ellender said "we have but ourselves to blame" for the outbreak of communism "in our own backyard."

"In our haste to combat the rising tide of communism in Europe, we have neglected our good neighbors to the south of us," he said.

Ellender has made several trips into Central and South America as a senator. On these, he said:

"I found a high degree of antagonism toward North Americans. Many of the Latin American people blame all their economic and political troubles on the United States."

"Our nation is a handy scapegoat for unscrupulous Latin American politicians—particularly the Guatemalan variety who, in many cases, are financed and propagandized by Moscow."

Ellender recalled the United States helped many of these "struggling republics win their independence from Spain 'only to find itself now' labelled as an aggressor."

Army Major Raymond A. Keller, in co-operation with the Insular Bureau of Agriculture (Philippines), in 1931 produced a vaccine for rinderpest, an acute cattle disease. Within a few years after the development of this vaccine, rinderpest was eradicated from the islands.

Seek To Question Former Official Of Housing Board

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Senate investigators today were reported trying to subpoena Clyde L. Powell, ousted official of the Federal Housing Administration, for an appearance Tuesday at a Senate Banking Committee probe of alleged housing scandals.

When Powell appeared before the same committee April 19 he refused to answer any questions, basing his refusal on "my constitutional privileges not to be a witness against myself."

The decision to recall Powell was reached at a secret Banking Committee session last Wednesday and the effort to locate him started at once.

Powell was assistant FHA commissioner in charge of rental housing until his ouster in April shortly after the White House began a shakeup at the FHA.

Since then a dozen top officials have been suspended or fired, including Guy T. O. Holliday, who had been FHA commissioner.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) has called Powell "the key official with respect to over valuation of properties under Section 608, resulting in windfalls of 100 million dollars or more."

Scandal charges have centered on this old section of the National Housing Act which expired in 1950. The FHA insured some 3½ billion dollars worth of mortgages, most of them in the post World War II period, for Section 608 apartment projects.

"Windfall" profits resulted when builders or sponsors built their projects for less money than the amount of their FHA insured mortgage. The balance was pocketed, and rents on the finished projects were scaled to retire the full mortgage loan.

Byrd has made public a letter he wrote Atty. Gen. Brownell April 27 which asked "immediate legal proceedings against Clyde L. Powell."

"In appearing before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee," Byrd wrote "Mr. Powell pleaded the Fifth Amendment. The newspapers carried the story that the FHA investigation was begun by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a result of large gambling losses by a high official. It has not been officially publicized, but it was Mr. Powell whose losses in gambling first attracted the attention of the FBI. As Mr. Powell pleaded the protection of the Fifth Amendment, he is beyond the power of a congressional committee to compel him to testify, and the Justice Department should take action without delay."

The train started to shimmy and all the sudden I was thrown against the controls," recalled Engineer Roy Ensign of Fairbury, Neb.

Conductor W. O. Nielsen, 65, of Omaha called it a "miracle" that no one was killed. One coach was piled on top of another, a rail was driven like an arrow through another and other cars lay along the right-of-way, eight of them toppled over.

Torn up rails were bent into odd shapes and one rescue worker said the roadbed looked as though it had been hit by a tornado.

Billy Graham In West Berlin For Revival Meeting

BERLIN, June 26 (AP)—American evangelist Billy Graham arrived Saturday at this Western outpost behind the Iron Curtain to preach in the big Olympic Stadium Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler built.

The lanky evangelist was pale because of a recent kidney attack, but told church and city officials who welcomed him that he was "feeling much better."

The kidney attack in Duesseldorf delayed his arrival here. The attack aroused fears across Europe that the strain of his European "crusade" was too much for the American preacher.

But he rested two days and flew here where 140,000 Berliners from the free and the Red-dominated halves of the city waited to hear him preach.

"Millions of people throughout the whole world will pray for the Berlin rally," Graham said. "The Lord will bless our prayers."

"I am not here to discuss politics and I will not answer political questions," he told a press conference soon after his arrival.

He said he hoped his Olympic Stadium rally Sunday would be "one of the greatest meetings for Christ in history."

An estimated 140,000 Germans are expected to pack the 100,000 seat stadium and two nearby sports fields. West Berlin officials estimated that the drawing power of Graham was so strong that 10,000 Soviet zone Germans would join the crowds at the meeting.

New Premier Of France Seeking Talks With Ike

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The White House reported today that the new French Premier, Pierre Mendes-France, is ready to take part in "confidential and intimate" talks with President Eisenhower on such burning issues as Indochina and the European defense army.

The French position on talks between the heads of the two governments was contained in a letter from President Rene Coty of France to Eisenhower.

Coty's letter, dated June 23, was in reply to a letter sent by Eisenhower at the time when Mendes-France was organizing a new government after the fall from power of former Premier Joseph Laniel.

Eisenhower had offered "to open new discussions" on Indochinese defense proposals. Coty said the French were "always ready to proceed with the United States government to examine the problems involved in the re-establishment of peace in the Far East."

The French Premier said his country was likewise prepared to discuss with the United States plans for the defense of Europe.

He did not mention specifically either Indochina or the European Defense Community, but diplomatic sources here said they understood that Coty was referring to these questions in his letter.

Eisenhower had told Coty that time was running out on EDC, the projected six-nation defense organization designed to combat any Communist aggression in continental Europe.

There was a brief flurry of activity late today over the translation of the French word, "confiant," which the White House had Anglicized to "confidential."

Paris sources said the word should have been translated to indicate that the talks would be carried on in an atmosphere of trustfulness without regard to whether they were public or private.

The White House said perhaps the word should have been translated as "friendly," and sent the message to translators to recheck. Later, however, the White House said the translation as "confidential" would stand.

Two Seriously Hurt In Wreck Of Fast Train

HALLAM, Neb., June 26 (AP)—The Rock Island Rockv Mountain Rocker left the tracks near Hallam last night strewn cars along its right-of-way and injuring at least 75 of its 25 passengers, but only two remained in serious condition today.

Veronica Moroney, Denver, was reported in serious condition with internal injuries and W. R. McFarland, 53, Chicago, a cook, was reported in poor condition with first and second degree burns on both arms, his face and chest.

Many of the other injured already had been released from hospitals and more were being dismissed hourly.

Rock Island officials in Chicago said the tracks will be cleared by 2 a.m. (CST) Sunday. They have not given any cause for the derailment.

The train was derailed just after it had passed through Hallam, a town of 172 persons, some 20 miles southwest of Lincoln.

The train started to shimmy and all the sudden I was thrown against the controls," recalled Engineer Roy Ensign of Fairbury, Neb.

Conductor W. O. Nielsen, 65, of Omaha called it a "miracle" that no one was killed. One coach was piled on top of another, a rail was driven like an arrow through another and other cars lay along the right-of-way, eight of them toppled over.

Officials Probe Attorney's Death In New Orleans

BATON ROUGE, June 26 (AP)—New Orleans and Baton Rouge police today probed the death of John Roger Jones, 37-year-old attorney found nude and bleeding in his New Orleans hotel apartment.

Detective reports said hair and blood samples were taken from the base of a floor lamp that lay shattered in a corner of the room.

"I contend there was some man at the other end of that lamp," Dr. J. W. Watson, East Baton Rouge coroner, told a five-man coroner's jury.

The jury ruled death resulted from a fractured skull and a cerebral hemorrhage and there was also evidence of chronic alcoholism. It assigned no reason for the injuries.

Philip Jones, brother of the deceased, testified he received a phone call from Eugene Conway, his brother's roommate, about 6:30 a.m. yesterday asking for and taken to Baton Rouge, where he "another spell."

An autopsy showed hemorrhages inside and outside the brain covering, bruises on the cheek, and indications that the victim was trying to break off from alcoholism.

Detectives who investigated the case reported the blood stained mattress had been turned over and "the room showed evidence of having been cleaned in a hurry."

Dr. Harry B. Greenberg, a resident at the hotel, told police Conway summoned him to the room about 5:30 a.m., an hour before Philip Jones was called. The doctor said he found John on the floor, but saw no signs of blood or other injuries.

He said he helped place the man on the bed and advised Conway to get him to a hospital "as soon as possible."

Philip Jones testified at the inquest that Conway told him the doctor did not regard the situation as serious, but had advised calling the family in Baton Rouge.

Dr. Watson, contending that some one was on the other end of the lamp, doubted if the skull fracture could have resulted from a fall. On the trip back to Baton Rouge, according to Philip's statements in police reports, the brother was not conscious of what he was but cried out several times, "Don't do it, Jesu."

Miss Hospitality Title Bestowed On Laurel Girl

JACKSON, Miss., June 26 (AP)—Anne Bush, 19-year-old University of Mississippi senior from Laurel, was crowned "Miss Hospitality of 1954" tonight.

Three judges picked her from 61 candidates to succeed Edna Khayat of Moss Point at the state's hostess and goodwill ambassador for 12 months.

Miss Bush, with dark blonde hair and hazel eyes, was chosen on the basis of charm, personality, poise and beauty after judging at Biloxi and Jackson. Five feet, seven and one-half inches tall, her 130 pounds are well distributed into a 36-24½-36 figure.

Three alternates were chosen. They were Adelaide Smith, 19-year-old grey-eyed brunette from West Point; Mary Ann Murphy, 18-year-old brown eyed brunette, and Annette Reid, 18, of Iuka.

Miss Bush, who majors in speech correction with a view toward teaching, has been runner-up in several beauty and favorite contests.

After her crowning by Gov. Hugh White she began her duties as guest of honor at a reception at the governor's mansion.

The judges were Eleanor Nangle of Chicago, fashion and beauty editor of the Chicago Tribune; Robert Crossley of Topeka, Kan., editor of Household Magazine; and Ed Jones of Chicago, editor of Highway Traveler Magazine.

It was the first time in the six year history of the contest that all sections of Mississippi were represented by so many contestants. The coronation also commemorated the tenth anniversary of the Agricultural and Industrial Board which sponsors the contest.

White commended the board for attracting new industries to Mississippi.

and received permission to examine the body before interment. Baton Rouge officers said they regard it as a New Orleans case and no one is being held in connection with the death.

Steelworkers And U. S. Steel Again In Wage Parleys

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP)—Contract talks between the U.S. Steel Corp. and the CIO United Steelworkers resumed today—five days before the current pact expires at which time the union would be free to call a strike.

Negotiators for the corporation and the steelworkers resumed efforts to reach agreement on a 1954 pact after the union's powerful 170-member wage policy committee rejected a company offer last Tuesday.

David J. McDonald, president of the steelworkers, and vice-president John A. Stephens, of U. S. Steel, headed the respective committees.

Resumption of the contract talks raised speculation that the company was ready to present an improved offer to the union. McDonald said last Tuesday that offers made until that time were "completely unsatisfactory."

It was reliably reported that the rejected offer included a 2½ hourly increase and improvements in pensions and insurance.

McDonald reportedly told his policymakers that the offer amounted to less than a five-cent package. The union has not said publicly what it would consider a satisfactory agreement.

McDonald opened contract negotiations with U. S. Steel, pace-setter of the industry, May 18 by asking for a pay increase, a guaranteed annual wage, improvements in pensions and hospitalization, and other contract changes.

Negotiations were halted a week ago last Friday and were not resumed until today. However, it has been reliably reported that McDonald and Stephens discussed the negotiation situation several times by telephone.

Today's resumption is taken as an indication that the corporation has hit upon proposals which are an improvement over those rejected by the wage policy committee.

McDonald has already said that the wage policy committee will meet in Pittsburgh again next week, and he added, "I hope to have something more substantial to submit at that time."

The union chief also hinted strongly that he would object to any extension of the contract if an agreement is not reached before the Wednesday deadline.

The union, which negotiates contracts for 600,000 basic steelworkers, has also opened contract negotiations with other basic producers. However, the talks with U. S. Steel are in the spotlight because other firms usually wait for U. S. Steel to sign and then follow that pattern.

Basic steelworkers now are earning an hourly average of between $2.14 and $2.24.

Motorists Given Warning; Police Gird For Holiday

A stern warning was issued Saturday to motorists on the highways over the July 4 holiday that "every precaution will be taken to reduce the number of accidents by every method we have at our disposal."

The warning was given by Capt. Roy Byrd, head of Troop F, Louisiana state police, with headquarters in Monroe.

Pointing out that several new methods of detection, including the use of unmarked pick-up trucks and airplanes, will be put into use beginning Friday, Capt. Byrd said it was mandatory to use these "since last year the three day holiday period accident toll in this area proved fatal to one person, with eleven others injured. He said the department would do all in its power to prevent a recurrence of any type of highway accident 'no matter how serious.'"

Preparations for the holiday week end have already begun, the troop spokesman said, with final plans being worked out the first of the week. All leaves and days off have been cancelled and all members of the troop will work on 12-hour shifts, from Friday through July 5. Every state police automobile, including those unmarked, will be put into use, as will a number of pick-up trucks and airplanes with two-way radios.

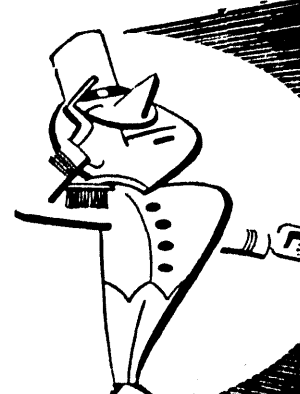

Capt. Byrd also pointed out that the highway signs giving "ample warning" to all persons who might be speeding have been put into place, which will notify motorists of the proper speeds. These will be strictly enforced both by patrols and by other speed devices. These "speed devices," Capt. Byrd said, include marked sections of the highway through which the time will be kept by officers on watch. These officers will be in touch with patrol cars by two-way radios and will report speeders to the troopers in the automobiles.

Friday the air patrol of the state police will drop leaflets over towns in this area, pointing out the various safety points to be observed during the holiday week end. In addition, members of the Junior Troopers, which is sponsored by the Louisiana state police department along with other law enforcement agencies, will distribute the pamphlets to motorists from various stations on the highways.

In issuing the warning, Capt. Byrd said the eleven injuries and one fatalities during the holiday week end occurred in this area outside of all incorporated towns. Also state troopers apprehended six drunk drivers and numerous other traffic violators.

Michigan ranks 12th among the states in value of minerals produced.

Thorne's Death Probed As Fiancee, Best Friend Say Dope Gear 'Planted'

CHICAGO, June 26—UP—Montgomery Ward Thorne's fiancée and his best friend Saturday promised "sensational" disclosures when an inquest resumed Monday into the mail-order heir's strange death.

Thorne's fiancée, Maureen Ragen, 18, and Dennis Annis, 21, said they will testify that evidence of narcotics in Thorne's room was "planted."

Thorne, 20, heir to $1.3 million, died a week ago Saturday in a room he rented near Chicago's fashionable "Gold Coast." The cause of his death has not been determined.

Coroner Walter McCarron said it was possible that Thorne could have died of a mixture of narcotics and alcohol. Tests have shown that his stomach contained the equivalent of 2 1/2 one-ounce shots of alcohol.

Harry Glos, chief deputy investigator for the coroner, confirmed Friday that a pill containing heroin and a marijuana cigaret had been found in the youth's room. McCarron said police and his own investigators learned that the young heir attended wild drinking parties on the near North Side.

"I want to know more about about these parties and what they had to do with his death," the coroner said.

McCarron said there were nine needle marks on Thorne's arms. Miss Ragen, who has denied that Thorne ever took drugs, said the needle marks could have been made by blood donations.

She said Thorne, who had not yet come into his inheritance, was given a $150 monthly allowance, had given blood to get money.

Other items found in Thorne's room included two hypodermic needles of the type used by narcotics addicts, a white junior miss girdle, a lipstick-stained facial tissue, and a bloodstained towel.

Glos said an analysis of the towel showed it was stained with hu-

Farm Bill Outlook

Martin Predicts House Will Okay Flexible Props

WASHINGTON, June 26 —UP—Speaker Joseph W. Martin predicted Saturday the House will override its agriculture committee and approve President Eisenhower's plea for flexible farm price supports on five basic crops.

But Democratic leader Sam Rayburn of Texas and two farm bloc leaders, Committee Chairman Clifford R. Hope (R-Kan.), and Rep. Harold C. Cooley (D-N.), asserted that present high supports — 90 per cent of parity — will be retained.

Parity is a standard set by law to give farmers a fair income in relation to their costs. Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson are fighting for flexible supports on the theory that farmers won't overproduce if they can't look forward to guaranteed high prices.

"I think the 90 per cent of parity will be sustained by a big House majority," Rayburn said in the face of Martin's prediction. "I feel confident that at least 75 per cent of the Democrats will vote for 90 per cent."

The showdown will come next Thursday or Friday when the House votes on the committee's general farm bill. It contains some farm legislation Mr. Eisenhower wants, including his wool subsidy plan.

The big fight is over the first sentence of the 49-page measure. It would require a one-year extension of mandatory price supports of 90 per cent of parity for wheat, corn, cotton, peanuts and rice which expire at the end of this year.

Administration forces will attempt to knock out that provision and substitute some compromise which would allow at least some lowering of price supports next year.

When the showdown comes, Martin told newsmen, "in my judgment a majority of the House members will vote for flexible supports."

The fight will split the Republicans, most of whom are lining up with the administration. The farm bloc itself is composed of mid-west Democrats.

man blood, semen and face powder.

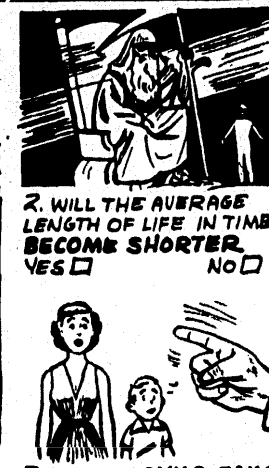

Nine days before he died Thorne changed his will, in which he originally had bequeathed his entire estate to his mother. In the new will, he bequeathed half his inheritance to Miss Ragen, granddaughter of racing news czar James Ragen who was shot to death by gangsters in 1946.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

1. CAN YOU TELL JUST HOW POPULAR YOU ARE?
YES ☐ NO ☐

2. WILL THE AVERAGE LENGTH OF LIFE IN TIME BECOME SHORTER?
YES ☐ NO ☐

3. WHEN A CHILD FAILS, SHOULD PARENTS BLAME CHILD OR TEACHER?
YOUR OPINION

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Yes. Have your friends vote among themselves who they prefer to go hiking with, play on a team, exchange Christmas presents with, and have as a best friend. The votes show how popular or how unpopular you are. This is called the "Social Adaptability Test" — one that you can make yourself. Our booklet, "How to be Popular" tells how to remedy unpopular traits. Send 15 cents, in coin, and self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Highly probable. Many doctors believe increase of life expectancy from 46.6 in 1911 to 68.4 in 1951, due mostly to medical science, may soon end. However, many naturally short-lived strains have been preserved who will marry naturally long-lived stocks. You can't do this without lowering the average — it's agin' nature!

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Parents should blame themselves first, the teachers second, and the child third. A $100,000 research shows that the home outweighs the school, church, playground and community in character building. This means that not only good moral conduct, but ambition, study habits, and development of the child's personality, are taught mainly in the home. Parents are the chief educators.

National Commander Henry J. Mahady of Latrobe, Pa., was scheduled to address the convention Sunday. The meeting will end on Sunday with committee reports, and the election and installation of officers.

TREE SNAKE

Whipsnakes are clumsy and awkward on the ground, but they are very much at home in trees. Their slender bodies blend in with the branches and make them difficult to see. Many a lizard or other small creature has felt their fangs when his eyes had not warned him of danger.

Construction In America Rises To All-Time Volume

WASHINGTON, June 26 —UP— The Federal Reserve Board said Saturday the immediate future looks good for the construction industry, now enjoying its biggest boom in history.

Money spent on construction will total a record $37 billion this year if it continues at the same rate as last month. The board said there is a "high and rising" volume of new construction contracts.

Construction Expenditures by federal, state and local governments were higher in May than a year earlier, although January-through-May expenditures were not quite up to last year's.

Private spending for housing was also slightly behind last year for the five-month total, but spending in May alone was higher this year than last year.

Private spending for non-residential construction is higher than ever. Spending for business construction has been stable at a high level this year, the board said, while spending for schools, hospitals and churches had risen "appreciably."

Reasons for the record activity, the board said are: Stable or declining construction costs with stiffer competition and greater efficiency; and large savings and easier federal reserve credit policies, resulting in a greater availability of funds for construction and mortgage loans. It said the housing bill now before Congress would permit further liberalization of lending terms.

In addition, the board's action this week to reduce the amounts of money if requires banking, hold in reserve will add to the availability of funds for lending.

Looks 'Em Over

It's possible to start crowing too soon, but for the past couple of weeks the Twin Cities Sports have looked like the hottest club in the Cotton States League. Not including what might have happened last night as the Sports went against the Greenville Bucks after this writing, the Twin Cities had won eleven of their last sixteen games in a struggle that lifted the Sports out of the cellar although it still looks like a dog fight to make the upper strata.

Improvement in the pitching department where the hurlers have been going the distance more regularly has been a big factor in the noted improvement that showed a pair of one-hitters for John Sullivan and Billy Halley, and Len Strickler notching three straight wins going into last night's game. The drive was also sparked by 17 Sports home runs in seven consecutive games.

We feel Manager Ed Head is to be congratulated for the fine showing of the Sports of late, but the officers and directors of the club are due a lot of credit, too. With attendance figures far below expectations, the front office has never stopped the search for talent that would bolster the club, even though acquiring new players is an expensive proposition.

We would say the management of the Twin Cities Sports has kept faith. What about the fans? Will they turn out in increasing numbers sufficient to enable the club to break even? It's up to the baseball fans. Give up on baseball and the club is going to give up on you. It could be a long, long time before professional baseball could get another start here if the franchise should be surrendered before another year.

The Fifth District American Legion Junior baseball race enters its final week of scheduled play with a new champion for the district and state getting ready to replace the Monroe club that has won the state title two years running. Coach Loy Scarborough's West Monroe club and the battling Bastrop team handled by Darrell Foreman are running neck-and-neck for first place in the nine-team district race with Farmerville and Jonesboro apparently battling it out for the third and fourth places in the district series due to start in another week.

Farmerville last held the district title before the rule of Woody Boyles' Monroe clubs. Bastrop has been in district playoffs before, but Jonesboro and West Monroe are showing their first real contenders. The league has been good all round this year. Few games have been won by lopsided scores and the low rating clubs have given the top outfits some close battles, like Mangham, with its best Legion club, knocking off Farmerville a few days ago, and Monroe, although shorn of its great talent of a year ago, handing West Monroe its second loss in 12 starts Friday.

Even the lowly Ruston club, although way down in the standings, has caused the leaders concern. When West Monroe barely nipped Ruston in their last meeting Coach Scarborough called the Lincoln parish pitching the best his West Monroe boys had faced.

Bastrop and West Monroe could about settle on the league leadership when they meet tomorrow in West Monroe. At the same time Jonesboro will be at Farmerville in another decisive game. West Monroe draws Farmerville again Wednesday and the week's three big games should settle the lineup for the district playoffs.

Chief Vs. Dusek; Negro Girls On Mat Tuesday

Ethel Johnson, Cincinnati, Ohio, meets Babs Wingo, New Orleans, in the first half of a double main wrestling event at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night; and Indian Chief Apache takes on Danny Dusek in the other half. Both the female participants in the two-of-three falls to win opener are Negro girls.

Babs Wingo weighs 150 and is reputedly noted for her strength and timing. Ethel Johnson, at 130, is 20 years old, and is the smallest and youngest of the two masters. Accustomed to wrestling clean style, and disdaining rough or foul tactics, the latter should be the fan favorite.

Apache, in a tag team match last week with Jackie Fargo as his partner, was defeated by the team of "Big Boy" Cronin and Dusek. Dusek won the match for his team by pinning young Fargo in the third and deciding fall.

Since Fargo was not only Chief's partner, but is a personal friend as well, nothing would please the Indian more than avenging Jackie's loss last week. But Dusek is a very strong and burly grappler, who never hesitates to use illegal tactics against anyone as popular with the crowd as Apache has proved to be.

Harty Calls For Replay Of Oiler, Buck Ball Game

GREENVILLE, Miss., June 26 (AP)—Judge Emmet Harty, president of the class C Cotton States League, ruled today that a protested game between Greenville and El Dorado must be replayed July 9.

Harty said umpires misinterpreted rules with reference to number of bases a player can take on an overthrow.

The questioned play came in the last of the seventh inning with the score tied and no one out. Bill Carr of El Dorado was on first and catcher Luther Tucker bunted.

Second baseman Hugh Glaze of Greenville overthrew third and the umpires permitted Carr to score. Harty said rules limit a player to two bases when an overthrow goes into the stands or players' bench.

Greenville manager Willis Hudlin contended the Glaze throw was the first play and the two bases should begin at the position of the runners when the ball was pitched. The umpires ruled Glaze bobbled the ball and lost a chance to make one play, with all runners advancing one base. Then the overthrow would allow each to advance two more.

Harty ruled Tucker should go to second base and Carr to third under the two-base rule.

Strickler Loses 4-Hitter As Dean Tosses 3-Hitter

Twin Cities baseball fans were treated to one of the fanciest pitching duels seen here this season as Jerry Dean, Greenville southpaw, hooked up with Len "Red" Strickler, Twin Cities right-hander, in a battle that saw Dean emerge triumphant with a three-hitter, 3 to 1. Strickler allowed only four hits, three of them bunched in the seventh inning as the Bucks broke the shackles of a no-hitter.

Twin Cities errors were the biggest flaw in the game although only one miscue actually counted in the scoring, and Sports' bats were quite silent except for first baseman Bob Norden's booming home run in the ninth inning to ruin Dean's shut out.

Strickler, matching Dean in strike outs with ten, allowed no hits for six and one third innings but saw the Bucks take a one-run lead in the fourth frame when Hugh Glaze, getting the only free pass of the night off the Sports' redhead, stole second and raced all the way home when Sam Chetta's throw to second went wild into the outfield.

Three successive hits after one was out in the seventh ruined Strickler's no-hit bid and brought the Bucks two runs. Hal Martin singled. Strickler threw wild to first in an attempted pickoff that enabled Martin to reach third from where he scored on a single by Dick Eaton. But the error made little difference as Al Benza immediately followed with a triple. The only other hit off Strickler, who was relieved by Bill Halley who came in to pinch hit in the eighth, was an eighth inning single by Glaze.

For six innings the only hit of the game was a second frame single by Chetta, and the Sports could show nothing more damaging to Dean until the ninth when Norden brought the fans cheering to their feet with a 365-foot smash over the left field fence. Paul Flores followed with a single and none out, but that was as far as the Sports could go in their effort to pull the game out of the fire as the next three batters went down on outfield flies.

Halley, nothing his sixth win against three losses, is challenging Bob Brown, El Dorado, for the strike-out championship of the Cotton States League. Official averages through Tuesday show Halley had fanned 69 against Brown's 75, but Billy whiffed 13 Bucks Thursday night. (Staff photo by John Oldenburg)

Couple Pledge Troth By Candlelight In Waterproof

Claiming much interest on the evening of June 13, 1954, was the wedding of Miss Joyce Preis, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Preis of Waterproof, Louisiana, and Mr. William Von McKnelly, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. William Von McKnelly of Jefferson City, Mo. The marriage was solemnized by candlelight at 7:00 o'clock in the First Methodist Church of Waterproof by Rev. John G. Gieck, who used a double ring ceremony.

From the center of the chancel were tall baskets of white Majestic daisies, feverfew and fern, alternating with tall branched candelabra and ferns, extending to the altar rail and encircling the entire chancel. The altar rail was garlanded with a graceful rope of Plumosa fern, caught at intervals by small bunches of daisies and feverfew. On either side taller pedestals held 5-branched silver candelabra. Soft bows with small bunches of Plumosa fern and daisies decorated the reserved pews. A lovely program of nuptial music was furnished by Miss Mary Alice Wiley as soloist, with Mr. Joe Monroe at the piano. Before the arrival of the bridal party Miss Wiley rendered the following selections, "Oh Promise Me," "At Dawning," and "With This Ring I Thee Wed."

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a wedding gown of imported white rosepoint lace and tulle over satin. The fitted princess bodice was buttoned down the back with tiny white satin buttons. Appliqued lace motifs bordered the bodice, the top of the skirt, and the long fitted sleeves of tulle, which also featured the trim of tiny satin buttons. The very bouffant skirt fell into a graceful cathedral length train. A rosepoint half-hat, trimmed in sequins and pearls, held her finger tip veil of imported illusion, and she carried a bouquet of Thalaenopsis orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Richard Craig, St. Louis, Mo., sister of the bridegroom, as matron-of-honor. Other attendants were Miss Maureen K. Smith, Flora, Ill., Miss Barbara Marcus, Vicksburg, Miss., and Miss Lillian Teller, cousins of the bride. The matron-of-honor and bridesmaids wore identical floor length gowns of pale blue nylon net. The strapless bodice had a shirred inset over the bust with a notched collar, and the skirt was fashioned with tier after tier of nylon net. A matching wide blue satin sash was finished with a huge bow in the back. The crescent shaped bouquets were of pink Majestic daisies, and each wore in her hair a single pink Majestic daisy.

The flower girls, little Mary Ann and Louise Wampold, wore floor length frocks with a tight bodice, having an off-the-shoulder neckline. The very full skirts were finished with tiny ruffles from the waist down. In their hair they wore wreaths of pink forget-me-nots and carried pink organdie baskets with blue daisies.

Mr. McKnelly had as his best man his brother, Mr. Dow McKnelly, and as ring-bearer Edwin Preis, Jr., cousin of the bride. Serving as groomsmen were Mr. Robert Dow McKnelly, Shelbyville, Ill., cousin of the groom, Richard Craig, St. Louis, groom's brother-in-law, and Mr. Theodore Sadler, Columbia, Mo. Louis Preis, Jr., brother of the bride and James Leake, Monroe, the bride's cousin, were ushers.

A reception was held in the Methodist Church Community Center at the rear of the Methodist Church. The bride's mother was wearing a floor length model of rose-taupe organza. A wide soft collar, ending in fish-like folds in front, formed a very becoming neckline. The full skirt was slightly gathered across the back. The mother of the groom was also wearing a floor length gown of dusty rose lace over taffeta. The neck line featured a soft shirring and the skirt fell in soft gathers. Both wore shoulder bouquets of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Preis and Dr. and Mrs. McKnelly assisted the bridal party in receiving. The long dining table, covered with a white linen damask and lace tablecloth, had as its centerpiece a large arrangement of white bride roses and stock. Flanking this on each side were 5-branched silver candelabra with white bride's candles. Crystal punch bowls at each end of the table were presided over by Mrs. Lehman Preis and Mrs. Ernest Preis, aunts of the bride, assisted by a group of young girls, all wearing colorful formal frocks.

Mrs. Sidney Crigler, aunt of the bride, assisted by Miss Karen Wampold, served at the cake table. Around the base of the tiered cake was a soft pleating of illusion with here and there a touch of Plumosa fern and lilies-of-the-valley. On each side were single silver candlesticks with bride's candles. Miss Janet Oglesby was in charge of the guest register.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. McKnelly left for a two week's trip. The bride chose for traveling a two-piece beige silk shantung ensemble. With this she wore brown accessories and an orchid corsage. Her small beige straw hat was trimmed with white organdy.

On their return they will make their home in St. Louis, where Mr. McKnelly will begin his senior year of medical school on July 1.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. R. D. Kuhlig, Louisville, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. O. H. McKnelly, Robt. D. and Larry McKnelly, Shelbyville, Ill., Miss Maureen Smith, Flora, Ill., Dr. and Mrs. W. V. ## News From The Public Library

The library column today is directed to the parents of children in the elementary grades. If you are such a parent, please read what we have to say. Each summer the Ouachita Parish Public Library sponsors a summer reading club for the benefit of the children of Ouachita Parish. The staff goes to a great deal of trouble to organize and administer this reading program, because we know that it is helpful to the children. Elementary school teachers say that it is most important that a child keep up a reading in the summer time, especially if he has just completed one of the first three grades.

This year we called our Reading Club "Books Around the World." Every detail was worked out to make the program interesting to the children. Readers in the grades from the fourth on up, are required to read one book with a foreign setting among each group of five books. This gives children a broad view of the world in which they live.

The response to the Reading Club has been very fine. More children are enrolled this summer than ever before. More than 1,300 children are reading as members of the "Books Around the World" reading club. Of this number more than 600 are reading in Monroe, over 400 on the Bookmobile, about 250 in West Monroe and a little over 100 at Carver. We are delighted that the response has been so good, but we would like to urge those of you who have not enrolled your child in this program to do so at once.

There is no substitute for reading. A poor reader is handicapped all of his life. Even in this age of Television and radio, there is so much that one must read to get. One of the greatest heritages that you can give your child is a love of reading. If he is not reading as a member of the "Books Around the World" reading club this summer, do not wait another day, but bring him to the library tomorrow and get him started on his reading program.

No matter which branch you patronize, you will find someone there to help him get started in his reading. We give you a most hearty invitation to take advantage of the library resources.

Don't discard a soiled white straw hat without investigating the possibilities for restoring its beauty. You may be able to have it cleaned and blocked for a couple of dollars.

H. Watson of Columbia.

The Rev. Sam Holladay of Columbia, officiated, assisted by the Rev. O. M. Corley of Urania.

The vows were exchanged before the altar entwined with English ivy and banked with magnolia leaves, flanked by tall white floor baskets filled with white gladioli, majestic daisies and fern, with branched candelabra standards placed in the choir section. From the baptistry hung two large white wedding bells tied with white satin ribbon. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

Nuptial music was presented by Mr. Roy Welch at the organ, who also accompanied Mrs. Roy Welch as she sang "Because."

Prior to the ceremony, the candles were lighted by Miss Frances Hooper of Winnsboro, and Miss Louise Hollis of Halle, who wore waltz-length Swiss organdy gowns in a pastel blue.

Groomsmen included J. E. Steely of Urania, Edward Mouser and Donald Farrow of Columbia and Norman Stolt of Olla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white lace over white taffeta. The fitted princess style bodice featured a sweetheart neck line trimmed in seed pearls and rhinestones and buttoned down the back with tiny self-covered buttons. The waltz-length skirt fell in a flared circular effect. She wore matching lace mitts and her fingertip veil was held by a garland of pearlized orange blossoms.

Her bouquet was of white carnations centered with a white orchid, net tulle, and satin streamers.

Miss Mary Ann Bardin of Tullos served as maid of honor, wearing a gown of Swiss organdy in rainbow hues designed with moulded bodice and bouffant ruffled waltz length skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies, maline and satin streamers. In her hair was a matching bandeau of velvet ribbon.

Mr. O. H. Watson served his son as best man.

Mrs. Tarver chose for her daughter's wedding a steel blue, silk shantung suit, white hat and accessories and she wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Taylor was attired in a frost blue lace dress, white hat and accessories and her corsage was also pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the social room of the church. The wedding party formed a receiving line in the reception room where tall baskets of white gladioli and daisies were placed at vantage points.

The bride's table was laid with a white damask cloth and centered with the bride's bouquet and encircled by the pastel bouquets of the bridesmaids. Tall white candles burned in white milk glass holders on either side.

At one end Mrs. Davis Holloway, aunt of the bride, presided at the white milk glass punch bowl. The three tiered wedding cake embossed in pink rose buds and topped with a miniature bride and groom was placed at the opposite end. Mrs. Jimmie Bardin of Tullos served the cake. Throughout the reception, Mr. Welch rendered a background of piano music.

Mrs. Jack Wells, sister of the bride presided at the register. When the couple left for a short wedding trip to Galveston, Tex., the bride was wearing a pearl gray linen suit, small white hat, white accessories, and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride attended Northeast State College at Monroe and the bridegroom attended Louisiana Tech and Northeast State College. They will be at home in Lake Charles, where Mr. Taylor is employed.

BLANKET PROTECTION

You can protect your blankets from moisture and moths if you wash and rinse them in warm water, dry them thoroughly and put them away in an air-tight storage container. Especially good for this are plastic containers which have zipper closings and hold up to four blankets each.

Outdoors Living Area Good For Families

It is said that 1954 will break all previous records in beautifying the home grounds. Many things have contributed to this increased interest. First, the vast increase in new housing and, second, because home owners are making wider use of shrubs and trees to obtain privacy, beauty and more comfortable living. Another reason is that the home owners are learning the values of good landscaping in relation to increase value of property which is estimated at about 15 per cent more people are picnicking in their own back yard than going to public parks, because it is safer, more convenient and more private. So it's a good time to check your surroundings and see what is needed to provide more family living in your own back yard.

Do you have sufficient shade? If not, locate where you need to plant another tree next fall. For this summer's shade you might plant vines—moon, morning glory etc.

Is your outdoor living area well furnished with chairs, tables, some way to cool—lights, running water etc.? If not, let's work to get it equipped. Using our back yard for activities for the family and its friends makes a richer family life for adults and children. Remember the slogan "Defeat Delinquency with Home Recreation". It's a good way. Make the home grounds an interesting place for children, friends, as well as your friends.

June is Dairy Month, so let's use milk during these hot days and at the same time keep our bodies fit. Milk and dairy products are a better buy now than any time since the war because prices are cheaper, making it possible for consumers to increase their use of these foods without a disproportionate increase in spending. When you drink milk, you get about 100 different nutrients, including vitamins, minerals, and high-quality protein. Three-fourths of all calcium in this country comes from milk. We need this mineral for strong teeth and bones and to regulate muscle activities. The diet of many of us is short of this needed food. Amount needed is a quart a day for children and a pint or more per day for an adult.

Frozen desserts, chilled milk drinks and salads using cheeses will aid in getting family's needed supply of milk in the diet these hot days. These foods fit into our backyard picnics, too.

The magazines are filled with new recipes for using fresh, canned, or dry milk or you may get some from the Extension Service. Make an adventure into new ways of using milk and milk products during June.

POISON IVY

Poison ivy occurs in abundance in most parishes of Louisiana. So many cases of accidental poisoning, especially among young children, occur when people don't recognize the plants and know how harmful they are. As a safety measure learn to know the plant on sight and avoid it.

Although the plants vary considerably throughout the country, the old rule: "Leaves three, let it be," is a reminder of one common characteristic—that only one three-part leaf leads off from each joint on the stem. The leaves never appear in pairs along the stem.

"Unfortunately, these dangerous plants are very hardy and adaptable. They may flourish in the deep woods or in very dry soil on sunny hillsides. They may be woody vines attached to trees for support, trailing shrubs mostly on the ground, or erect woody shrubs.

"Plants growing on home grounds should be eradicated, either by chemical or mechanical means for the safety of the family, but eradication needs to be done with the most careful precaution. It's taking a long chance for any one to assume that he is immune to this poisoning, just because he never has suffered from it."

To learn how to recognize these plants, take precautions against poisoning and use the safest and most effective means of eradicating them, send for "Poison-Ivy, Poison Oak and Poison Sumac" (F. B. 1972). As long as the supply of this publication lasts, single copies are free from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. See you next Sunday.

REV. AND MRS. WAYNON HALL MOTT

Samuel-Mott Vows Pledged In Minden

One of the most beautiful and impressive weddings of the early summer season took place Thursday evening, June 17, at the First Baptist Church in Minden when Miss Betty Jean Samuel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney B. Samuel of Minden became the bride of Rev. Waynon H. Mott of Winfield, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry J. Mott of West Monroe. Eight o'clock was the hour for the nuptial service. Rev. Henry J. Mott, father of the groom, officiated.

Arrangements of white gladioli decorated the altar. Myriad candelabra burning white tapers adorned the choir section, rising against a soft background of emerald palms. Vows were exchanged under an arch of greenery. Marking the family pews were white satin bows.

Mrs. Bert David played a concert of pre-nuptial music, as guests were being seated by the ushers, John McKethan of Lisbon, Jimmy Samuel of Minden and Alex Hopper and Rev. Eugene Langford of Fort Worth, Tex.

Wedding music included "Wonderful One," "I Love You Truly," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Schubert's Serenade" and "O Promise Me."

After the candles were lighted Mrs. David accompanied Miss Trudy Brooks, Miss Sue Hearron and Miss Sally Powell, who sang "Love's Old Sweet Song." Mr. Mark Tullios of Alexandria, accompanied by Mrs. David sang "Because" and "Through the Years." Miss Joy Clark and Miss Jamie Almond of Minden lighted the altar candles. They were identically gowned in blue nylon tulle. They carried tall white tapered tapers with blue satin ribbons.

As the ushers came down the church aisle, the bridegroom, attended by the Rev. Bill Holloway of Fort Worth, Tex., as best man, took his place beside the minister at the altar.

Preceding the bride down the aisle were her attendants. Her only sister, Mrs. John Maxey of Minden, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Myrl Bjorklund of Shreveport, Miss Patsy Phillips of Jonesville, Miss Betty Ann Davis of Denham Springs and Miss Rebecca Hearron of Minden. They wore identically designed gowns.

The matron of honor was attired in a pink nylon tulle over pink taffeta and the bridesmaids wore dream blue nylon tulle over matching taffeta. Their full tulle skirts featured a wide insertion of antique lace. A single strand of pearls, gifts of the bride, and lace mitts completed their attire. They carried Colonial bouquets of Marguerite daisies enhanced by puffs of airy French maline and satin streamers.

Also dressed in pink nylon with full tulle skirts were Miss Barbara Samuel and Miss Shirley Kaye Samuel, nieces of the bride, who served as flower girls. They wore a cluster of blue Marguerite daisies in their hair and carried baskets of blue Marguerite daisies.

Masters Tommy McKethan of Lisbon and Johnny Maxey of Minden served as ring bearers.

The bride, escorted by her father, entered to the strains of the traditional wedding march. She was a radiant figure in her gown of imported chantilly lace and nylon tulle over white satin. The bodice, closely moulded of exquisite lace, joined to a yoke of sheer tulle embellished with seed pearls was closed at the neckline with a lace collar. Sheer layers of gossamer tulle paneled with a froth of fragile chantilly lace formed the full skirt which fell into a cathedral train. Matching lace mitts came to a point at her hands and fastened with tiny buttons. The fingertip veil of airy layers of French bridal illusion drifted lightly from a Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with a cascade bouquet of white feathered mums centered with a single perfect white orchid.

The bride's parents were hosts following the ceremony at a reception in the church banquet room. Receiving with the newly married couple were their mothers and girls of the wedding party.

Guests were invited to sign the bride's book by Mrs. John McKethan, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride's table was laid with a white Italian cut-work cloth. At one end of the table the four-tiered wedding cake was placed. A cut-glass punch bowl ornamented the opposite end of the table. Completing the table appointments was a crystal candelabrum and the bride-maid's bouquets placed on a reflector. Mrs. Ben Barnes officiated at the cake service and Mrs. Conrad Adkins presided at the punch bowl. Assisting in the serving duties were Miss Sue Hearron, Miss Jackie Davis, Miss Annie Rea Almond and Miss Ellis Weaver of Elton, La. Soft music at the piano was played by Miss Lillian McKenzie of Pineville during the reception.

For traveling on their wedding trip Mrs. Mott chose a becoming suit of gray featuring a white linen collar and push-up sleeves. A gray straw hat and white accessories completed her attire. An orchid formed her shoulder corsage. Upon their return, Rev. and Mrs. Mott will make their home in Winfield, where he is pastor of Laurel Heights Baptist Church.

With three sessions scheduled for this week, the nine-day course will end Friday with a tea. For this the girls will learn to make and freeze sandwiches and cookies and to make punch. Because of the Girl Scout Cook badge has a requirement that a girl learn to make something typical of her part of the country the girls plan to make New Orleans pralines.

For a work session the girls are divided into groups and follow a chart of assignments that is just about like a Girl Scout kaper chart. After a demonstration on how to do things the groups go to their assigned work areas and prepare and cook the meal, which they then serve and eat.

Last week, on a typical day, each group prepared the following menu: pan broiled hamburger, mashed potatoes, frozen vegetables, young cook's salad, and Scandinavian apple pudding. Doesn't it sound luscious? And their teacher says everything the girls have cooked has been completely successful.

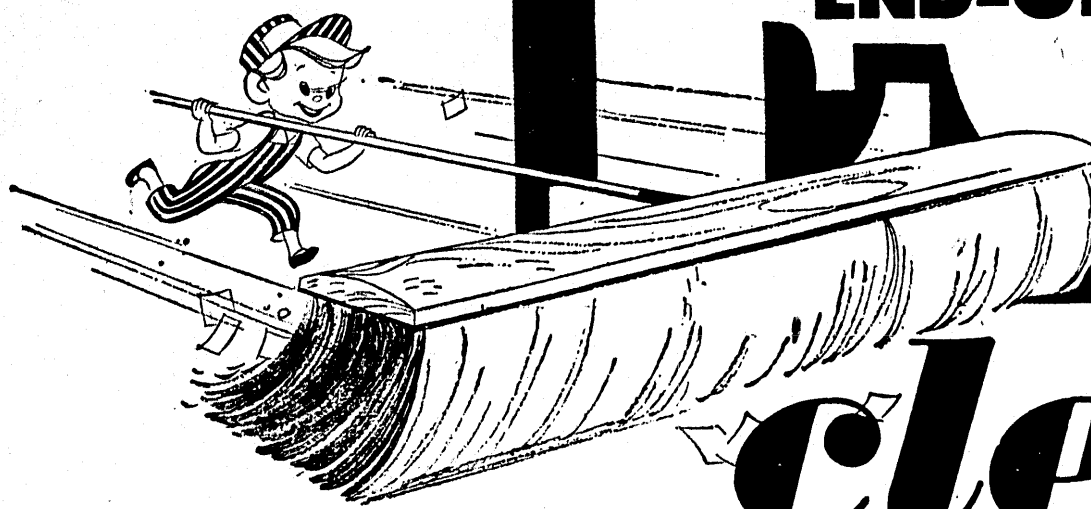

In serving, emphasis is placed on correct usage and good table manners. We know Mothers are glad to have additional reinforcement of their own teaching along that line. A mid-morning break after the demonstration is a popular period, too, when the girls are served a cooling drink and a cookie or two to satisfy that mid-morning emptiness.

Useful long after the course is completed are the attractive cookbooks compiled by their teachers and presented to each girl. The books have green covers with the Girl Scout emblem, contain not only recipes and menus, but drawings for table setting and charts showing food requirements. Scouts completing this course will fulfill requirements for the Cook and Foods badge and have a head start on Hospitality and perhaps Nutrition.

When it's fun, too, what more could anyone ask of a project? The Scouts and their parents are grateful to United Gas for a fine project.

Four weeks of swimming ended Friday. Cooking ends next Friday. Then comes day camp, July 13-22. If you are a grownup who's willing to help, call the office and volunteer. If you're 15 or 16 years old and would like to be a program aide, let the office know. Training for both staff and aides starts July 6. Come on and join the fun!

Bones should be removed from meat before freezing, so as to save valuable home freezer space, Deep-freeze Home Appliances advises. The bones should not be discarded, however. They make delicious soup stock which can be drained, chilled and frozen for later use.

A self-service bar for chilled fruit juices, especially popular in summer, may be set up in the kitchen by means of a beverage dispenser on the door of a new Deep-freeze refrigerator. To get a drink from the Aqua-Tap, one just pushes a glass against the outside spout.

La Salle Parish Today Is Model Rural Monument

By E. W. PLUMMER

The history of La Salle parish as a governmental unit dates back to 1910 when it was created out of the western half of Catahoula by an act of the Louisiana legislature. The new parish was christened La Salle in honor of the great

French explorer, who, according to legend met a powerful Choctaw chief on the western shore of Catahoula lake to pow-wow and smoke the pipe of peace on a beautiful site since known as Indian Bluff.

When the pow-wow had ended and gifts exchanged, La Salle and his stalwarts joined with the principals of the tribe in a great ceremonial dinner whose main entree was corn pone and roast duck which the Frenchmen ate with gusto lest they offend the chief and thus imperil their journey northward through the wilderness.

To chronicle the story of the people here, one must turn back to the first half of the nineteenth century and include a whole section of what is now east central Louisiana. The early settlers of this territory came originally from the hinterlands of Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, mountain dwellers of English descent.

Early Migration

Their migration was very slow. Eight to ten miles a day was good progress for ox-drawn wagons piled high with such necessities as cooking utensils, spinning wheels, looms, plows and axes, etc., and provisions. It was necessary that they stop for a season and raise a crop before proceeding further. These early pioneers who forded creeks, cut roads and crossed rivers on rafts of logs marked out what later became the Natchez Trace, the route which passes through Natchez, Jonesville, Jena, Tullis, Natchitoches, Mansfield to Sabine river, thence to Texas.

Natchez "under the hill" became a great gathering place for these migrants since they would often be forced to remain there for weeks when the Mississippi was flooding its western banks. During this waiting period, these pioneers celebrated with square dances to the tune of Pop Goes the Weasel, The Devil's Dream, Leather Breeches, and other folk music handed down from old England. Where there's a mountain folk, there's fiddlers.

The early settlers who established their homes in this section during the great Western Movement were originally mountain folk who found here a country much like their former homes — hills with virgin pine forests interspersed with clear running spring creeks leaping over pebbly beds, fertile bottom lands in the small valleys, and an abundance of deer, turkeys and squirrels.

Octahoula

The Indians called the country Octahoula, meaning Bountiful Waters. In addition to the lesser streams, their valleys covered with hardwood growth, great oaks and hickory trees whose mast would fatten their pigs, there were the great Catahoula and a score of lesser lakes, three rivers, lazy lagoons and winding bayous teeming with fish and surrounded by wild game.

These hardy settlers, descendants of English ventures, rugged individualists whose concepts of personal freedom was exceeded only by their religious zeal, were first known as the Piney Woods Dwellers and later on as the Bible Readers, for to be able to read the Bible with understanding was almost a social requirement. Those who had not attained this virtue were looked upon as "backwoods" folks, ignorant and unfortunate. At first, their ministers, the LA SALLE PARISH COURT HOUSE — With shade trees partially hiding the traditional facade, the La Salle Parish court house lends quiet, charm and dignity to the town of Jena, parish seat.

"circuit riders" were their teachers. Both children and adults assembled in centrally located homes to receive the "parson's" instruction and later on, in the church building. Textbooks were Webster's Blueback speller, the almanacs which featured fables, mottoes, and memory gems, and for advanced pupils, the Bible.

First Teachers

These first teachers understood even at that time that learning must be motivated. Spelling matches (bees) became one of the chief forms of entertainment. There were no prizes for the winners, but the person who "stood up" the longest earned a position of respect in the community. Many learned to spell every word in the speller from baker to incomprehensibility, which would be quite an assignment for our present high-school pupils.

Organized schools as such, where teachers were paid for their instruction, began here in the early 60s. These were "pay schools" where tuition charge was usually paid in farm commodities. The teacher was usually a superannuated preacher or some man with a physical infirmity who had acquired more-than-average learning through study, or he might have been "off" to school.

Let's take a look at one of these schools. Its log walls, battened with river laths, its clapboard roof, its "punching" floor, all of these blend perfectly with its primitive surroundings. Giant beech trees stretch a protecting canopy overhead and we hear the murmur of a brooklet that furnishes drinking water for the pupils.

Inside, the 20 or more "scholars" are sitting on half-log fashioned into benches by inserting legs in augur holes set at an angle at the ends. Here the "Master of the district school, Brisker wielder of the birch and rule" is expounding the three R's. There are no state adopted textbooks, but the principle ones used are Webster's speller, Mitchell's geography, McGuffey's readers, Ray's arithmetic, and Kellogg's English grammar. The "scholars" stand to recite while the teacher sits. Only the advanced pupils have writing paper and pens and ink, and all use slate and pencil for cyphering.

Jena Seminary

The present Jena High School evolved from Hemp's creek school, founded in 1867. As this little school grew, the citizens conceived of a higher institution of learning, and with their characteristic determination and purpose, erected a two-story frame building in 1887 through donations of money, materials and labor and christened it Jena Seminary, Catahoula High School, the first secondary school in this section of Central Louisiana.

The Seminary was a private school in which the donors who financed its construction held stock and was managed by a seven-man board of directors elected by the stockholders. This new seat of higher learning rendered a service to the social and cultural standards of the people that can hardly be calculated. The Seminary's first principal, "Professor" J. N. Gardner from Tennessee, held a college degree and his five assistants, including a music teacher, had all attended college. Principal Gardner introduced algebra, geometry, ancient history, English discourse, orthography and elocution. Graduates of the Seminary became the teachers of the smaller schools that had been established in the outlying districts, pastors of churches, and other positions of leadership in Jena and surrounding communities.

Typical of secondary schools of this period, the Jena Seminary set up rigid requirements for the assimilation of subject matter. Students had no choice of curricula. Authority coming from above set up the requirements for graduation. Students were required to pass a four-hour examination in each subject at the end of the session, and forty per cent mortality was not considered excessive. The worth of the school was measured by its ability to turn out scholars.

La Salle Schools

The school system of La Salle parish today is regarded by many authorities as a model for rural parishes. Thirty-six small schools have, during the three decades, been merged into ten consolidated schools, nine white and one Negro. The Jena and La Salle white high schools having enrollments of 610 and 324 respectively are housed in new fire-proof modernistic buildings architecturally beautiful and modernly equipped. The diversified curricula of these schools are evolved from this philosophy: "To train the pupils to do better the desirable things in life that they are going to do anyway." Students may elect the general course preparatory to any field of advanced work on the collegiate level; home economics and home management; agriculture including animal husbandry, horticulture, soil conservation and insect control; mechanical and industrial arts; music, vocal, instrumental and band; commerce and industry including typewriting, bookkeeping, shorthand and secretarial work. All pupils schedule physical education.

The Jena and La Salle High Schools each have beautifully appointed auditoriums, large modern gymnasiums, home economic cottages of latest design, agriculture, shop, and mechanical arts buildings, excellent fire-proof lunch rooms, excellent football stadiums, all set on scenic campuses. The consolidated elementary school plants are comparable with those of the high schools and their instructional equipment compares with the best in Louisiana.

The Trout-Good Pine High School for Negroes, located two miles west of Jena, accommodates every Negro pupil of La Salle parish. Pupils and teachers of this school will occupy a modern brick building now under construction next session (1954-1955), having a library, science laboratory, dining hall, home economics department, music room, shop, library, and large auditorium-gymnasium. In addition to a well-rounded general course, this school offers home economics, agriculture, and mechanical arts. A particularly outstanding music course including band, orchestra, chorus singing, and piano is offered by this school. With this background of interest in education dating back to the days of the Bible Readers, it is easily understood why La Salle is the top-ranking parish of Louisiana in literacy. Almost 98% of its adult population, all races, read and write the English language.

Rich In Legend

La Salle is rich in lore and legend, places of historic interest to those who would delve into the days of yore. Indian bluff, site of Marquis de la Salle's pow-wow with the Choctaw chief, holds, according to legend, the Natchez Treasure — "sacks of gold, jewelry studded with diamonds, and lumps of silver as big as cannon balls." Belief in this legend is attested to by excavations made by treasure hunters from days gone by to present times. The treasure was hurriedly hidden by a large body of Indian braves who had sacked Natchez when they were being overtaken by soldiers who had arrived too late to assist in the defense of Fort Rosalie in Natchez.

Ruins of the Carr mansion together with fragments of expensive China ware and implements of that age can yet be found on Carr Point, a beautiful prominence on the western bank of Catahoula lake. Mr. Carr, a wealthy plantation and slave owner of Black River basin, built a mansion here on the highlands because of its healthful surroundings, and then turned it into a recreational center where elaborate social functions were held.

The site of the old mansion can be located by following an avenue of crape myrtles westward from the lake bluff. These shrubs are still arranged in lines just as when planted in the middle 20s. Parallel with the lake bluff still remain a line of mammoth trees which flower profusely each spring honoring the departed who placed them there.

Names of the early settlers are preserved in the names of streams, hills, and other geographical features. The Hemphills, Gelvins, Kiltierlins, Doyses, Cockerhams, Brushleys, Squires, Devilles, Carrs, Slaughters, Rhinehardts, Gohrms, and many other names are thus preserved. Many communities were given Bible names — Ncho, Eden, Antioch, Ebenezer, Zion, Mars Hill, Calvary, etc.

Industry

Jena, the county seat of La Salle parish, a thriving modern town of approximately 2,000, is located in the heart of the great oil and gas fields in a forest products area. Jena has a new and modern town hall of brick construction and a sewerage disposal system covering the entire town is under construction. Natural gas, municipally owned, from the local fields supplies the town. Gas potentials are unlimited in this area. An ample supply of excellent quality water delivered through a well-planned network of mains under constant pressure is sufficient for all needs.

The Jena hospital, housed in a modern brick building valued at $185,000, has a staff of four doctors, trained nurses, and other personnel. Drs. P. L. Richardson, W. M. Floyd and Andrew Windham maintain dental clinics.

The La Salle parish library having over 9,000 volumes and the health unit are located in Jena. Olla, Urania and Tullis, located in northwest La Salle on the Missouri Pacific railway, are thriving towns having many points of interest. Olla is located near the oil fields of that section, ships large quantities of pulpwood and pling, and is a trade center for a prosperous farm section.

Urania

Urania, home of the Urania Lumber company and perhaps the greatest scientific tree farming center in the South, has potentials for a perpetual supply of timber. Tree farming was begun here on a scientific basis by the late Henry E. Hardtner in 1898. Since that time the Urania experimental plots have been visited and studied by foresters and forestry students from all parts of the nation. Mr. Hardtner, known as the Father of Forestry in Louisiana, laid the foundation for forestry practices in the South.

Tullis

Tullis, as it is known today, came into existence with the discovery of oil there in the middle 20s. The town itself is literally covered with wells and the field proper extends several miles to the north and south. Oil production is the principal industry. Modern stores there, however enjoy a substantial trade from a considerable area.

La Salle is a parish known for its excellent church buildings, predominantly Protestant. The Nebo Baptist church records go back to the 1860s, said to be the oldest in the parish.

La Salle's industries are oil and gas production, forest products, farming and cattle raising, and the trades.

La Salle is located in the heart of one of the greatest outdoor recreational areas in the South. Numerous lakes, including the great Catahoula and a multitude of small streams, bayous, lesser lakes, and three rivers are found here. These waters provide the best year-round fishing of every kind, and in the fall and winter, they teem

Future Bright For La Salle Say Leaders

JENA, La., June 26 (Special)—The future of La Salle parish, from an economic standpoint, looks bright, in the opinion of several business and civic leaders, as voiced in a round-table panel discussion at the weekly luncheon of the Jena Kiwanis club.

One of the newest and fastest-growing "industries" in La Salle parish is the tourist and sportsman's trade. E. W. Plummer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, stated. Pointing out that the fishing and hunting activity developed in the Black lake area of Natchitoches has grown to be the "third largest industry" of that section of the state, Mr. Plummer expressed the belief that if present trends continue, the hunting, fishing and tourist trade in Jena and La Salle parish could rival that record here "within a few years."

A number of tourist courts and motels have been constructed in and around Jena within recent years and already they are being booked to capacity week after week to take care of the demands of sportsmen who trek in here from other parts of Louisiana and from out-of-state areas to enjoy the hunting and fishing offered in the numerous lakes, rivers and streams of the area.

"This trade means considerable more revenue for the town of Jena and La Salle parish than most people realize," Mr. Plummer told the Kiwanis members, "and in future years could grow to considerable proportions."

He stated that in addition to the nationally-known attraction of Catahoula lake, the parish offers numerous other attractive fishing spots on the various lakes, rivers and streams in the area. Work has been launched by the Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with other agencies, to improve these "minor" lakes, Mr. Plummer said.

In discussing the oil industry in the parish, J. F. Justiss of Justiss-Mears Oil Company, stated that there still is a lot of oil to be found in La Salle parish. He indicated that it was his belief that before too many years wells would be going down in this area to depths of 16,000 to 20,000 feet instead of the "shallow" wells now in operation.

Although the Wilcox sand has been pretty well explored, Mr. Justiss was of the opinion that there still are discoveries to be made in strata but he envisioned that eventually the wells would be exploring the Tuscaloosa formation.

The present production, for the most part, Mr. Justiss said, comes from what is known as the "La Salle arch" and technically speaking "We are on the mountain top" of the formation. The La Salle arch covers all of La Salle parish, parts of Grant and Winn parishes and some of Catahoula, he said. He was definite in predicting deeper producing horizon for this area.

Hugh Burnham, of the Nebo Oil Company's forestry department, stressed that timber and related forestry products provided "more income for La Salle parish than most people realize. Although the oil industry is more noticeable in the parish's economic life, Mr. Burnham said, more people were gainfully employed or received some sort of income from timber and forestry products in the area than any other industry.

Questioned by one Kiwanian, Mr. Burnham said that there were thousands of acres of land which could—and would—be reforested in the parish if it were not for the woods hogs.

"There can be no doubt that the forestry picture for La Salle parish, the birthplace of reforestation and timber conservation practices, is bright and continued increases in this industry is assured," he concluded.

H. D. Gaddis, parish farm agent with the agricultural extension service, stated that farming still is a major economic factor in the economic life of the parish. There has been an increase of about 200 farms in the parish in the past 10 years, he said, although the farms are of the small-holdings type.

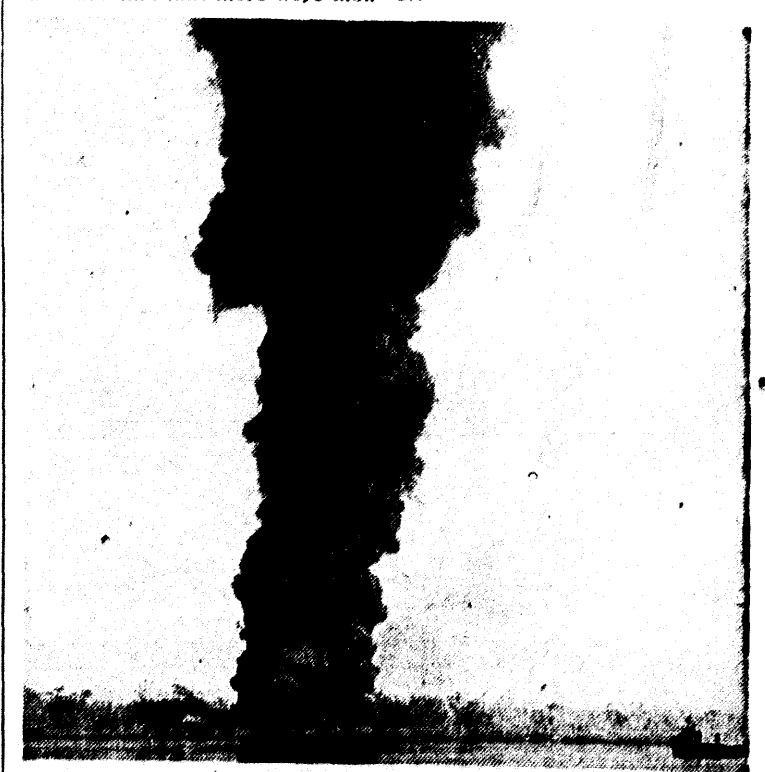

Whereas the agricultural picture in the nation has been for an increase in the size of farms, in La Salle parish the nation has been the other way around, he pointed out. The 1940 census showed farms in La Salle parish of an average of 51 acres. In 1950, the census figures listed the average farm size in La Salle parish at 49 acres.

More diversified farming, the adoption of new agricultural procedures and the fact that more persons in the parish now are engaged in some form of farm activity gave Mr. Gaddis reason to believe that agriculture still will play an important part in the economic life of the parish.

OLLA KIWANIS

OLLA, June 26 (Special)—Mayor Clyde Fant of Shreveport will deliver the principal address of charter night celebrations at Olla on June 28 when the Kiwanis club of Olla is presented its charter, making it the youngest Kiwanis club in the Louisiana-Mississippi-Tennessee district.

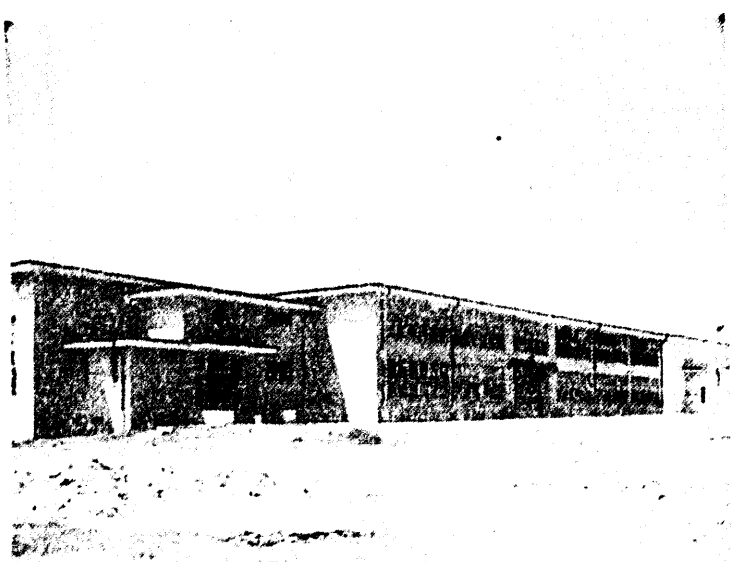

Sponsored jointly by the Jena and Columbia Kiwanis clubs, the Olla group was organized about the same time as the club at Ferriday which received its charter on June 17.

WILDCAT BLOWS OUT — The oil well above is shown as it blew out in the middle of Catahoula Lake sometime ago. The well spouted oil and gas for days before finally being controlled.

STAND OF PINES — The young stand of pines, above, symbolizes La Salle Parish's interest in reforestation and lends support to its claim as "birthplace of forest conservation," dating back to the early years of the Urania Lumber Company and the Hardtner brothers who were pioneers in reforestation and conservation of timber resources.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL — Interest in education is one of La Salle Parish's major concerns. The new Jena High School, above, is a typical example of the readiness of the parish to spend thousands of dollars for educational purposes.

TALL DERRICK — In addition to timber, oil is another major industry in La Salle Parish. Tall derricks, such as the one shown above, sprouting from new stands of pine graphically tie the two industries together.

REFORESTATION PROGRAM — Another example of how La Salle Parish is working hard to reforest its barren hillsides is shown above as a crew of the Louisiana Forestry commission uses tree planters in setting out pine seedlings.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: "I have been married four years, during which time our home has been with my wife's parents, and this is the cause of constant friction. We are in a position to buy our own home, but my wife says that she has a duty to her parents as well as to me. We have a little girl of two years of age and for her sake I think we should have our own home."

ANSWER: The Bible has very definite teaching to give to the Christian in a case such as you have mentioned. Regarding marriage, Jesus has said, "For this cause shall a man leave father and mother and shall cleave to his wife and they two shall be one flesh." (Matt. 19:5). This, of course, applies to a woman as well as to a man. In certain circumstances, financial or in time of sickness, it may be necessary for a couple to be in the home of one of the parents, but in your case, it is not so. Then, there is the definite teaching in the Bible regarding the authority of the husband. "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands as unto the Lord, for the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the Head of the church." (Eph.

5:22-23). The Apostle Paul is clearly pointing out, however, that the authority rests on love and sacrifice. Children are exhorted to do two things with regard to their parents: to obey and honor. The obedience is transitory and must pass on. The honor never passes, never changes. When marriage comes, the obedient obedience ceases. It would be a good thing if all parents would recognize that. So, with such clear teaching from the Word of God, you have only one course open to you, and we trust and pray your wife will agree.

There will also be lunch served at the noon hour. Special guests will be the executive committee of the Trenton Baptist Association.

Garden Writer Now In London Queen Mother To Attend Sesquicentennial Today

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT, FRHS

LONDON—The tulips were blooming when we arrived in Quebec to sail for England. I had estimated that they should be as one rolls back the calendar of the seasons when going North. It is about a week for every one hundred miles. . . .

After a foggy sea journey, prolonged by our having to go South almost to the Azores because of icebergs, we arrived in dear, old England. The first thing that greeted me was the windbreaks of hawthorn which were in glorious bloom.

past Byfleet we passed through the section of England thickest with nurseries. Again I missed one thing I wanted to see. I failed to look in time for the nursery of my old friend, Roland Jackman. His nursery introduced the purple Clematises.

Yesterday, June 15, I went over to the Royal Horticultural Society to pay my dues and took in the "fortnightly flower show." (It was strange paying dues in person, rather than mailing them.) We went over the show with the proverbial "fine-tooth comb." I might add, knowing I was a southerner, the lady at the R. H. S. office looked up at me and sighed. "My, we're going to miss you Billy Graham."

The R. H. S. show was mostly an iris show. It looked like a huge flower garden in mostly yellow and blues when seen from an upper level.

Many of the famous English nurseries had large exhibitions of irises and what we could call large pinks and small carnations. The latter are now available in all carnation colors. Most interesting, however, are the more or less single ones with deep red-brown centers. All of them smell perfectly wonderful.

Our experience with them in the south is that they bloom well for a week or so, or many even a few weeks, and then not much again, until the cool weather in the fall. The firm of Allwood's has developed the pinks to an amazing degree.

In the tree and shrub display, two wonderful magnolias were outstanding. M. Watsoni has fragrant flowers with brownish centers and M. Sieboldi is white and red. Unfortunately, we Americans know little about these flowering Oriental species. Here and there in the show are exhibits of rock garden plants, but most of these are from the Alps and are not for our heat.

But more comes later in a full report. Hope you will travel with me. I hope to bring back and report on some plants that are suitable for our climate. We're still seeking that "ideal" garden, the beautiful flowering yard that blooms year-round despite our strange weather. See you next week.

Garden Center Notes

By Mary M. Jardine

Day Lily Culture Popular

The Patio Garden Club of Monroe provided the flower show at the center this week. Our judges were Mrs. C. E. McKenzie and Mrs. John Lewis. In the arrangement division, first place was awarded to Mrs. J. R. Euston for a line mass arrangement of magnolia in a tall green glass container. Mrs. Euston used the magnolia in the various stages of development. Buds for height and line, partially opened flowers and fully opened blooms for a focal point.

Second place awarded to Mrs. Ralph Smith for a mass arrangement of dock, aspidistra and yellow day lilies.

Third place to Mrs. Jack McCook for a triangular arrangement of zinnias in shades of yellow in a pastel green container.

In the horticulture section, Mrs. Robert Wood was awarded a blue ribbon for rose zinnias, red ribbons for shrimp plant and liriopse.

Here's good news! The Monroe Garden Club will bring Gregory Conway to Monroe in September for two days. Mr. Conway will give several lectures and conduct a clinic. More about this later. The mammoth mentioned in Mildred Swift's column and that exhibited at the center are the same plant. This is Erythrina or South American Coral-tree. This is a shrubby plant and sometimes makes a small tree. These are easily propagated by seeds or cuttings. Our favorite mammoth is Erythrina herbaria. The flower stem of this plant is erect, often three and one-half feet in height, bearing a long spike of slender bright crimson flowers. It is blooming now. In fall, the beans are as striking as the flowers. Brown pods open to disclose scarlet beans which retain their color indefinitely. The Indians drilled and strung these for beads.

In southwest Louisiana the plant is used for medicinal purposes. Since they are slow from seed it is best to buy them from your nurseryman. They are available in our vicinity? Somewhere the day lilies seem more beautiful than ever this year. Daylilies are such satisfactory and versatile plants. They can be used so many different ways in our gardens—As wide borders, for accent plants, in mixed perennial beds, naturalized by a pool or lake, or used where nothing else will grow. They are most effective in front of evergreens and many of the new ranch style homes in Monroe have used them as foundation plantings. You have an artist's palette of tones and colors to choose from in the new hybrid daylilies. We have five growers and hybridizers (that I know of) right here in the Twin Cities and many others throughout the district.

Be sure to visit these gardens and those of your friends and make your selections for next year's bloom. Hybridizing is a fascinating hobby, and one grower warns that it is like eating peanuts: once you get started you can't stop.

Two of our best garden magazines, Popular Gardening and Flower Grower, have devoted a large portion of their July issues to articles on daylily culture.

Keep Garden In Bloom All Year

That Ferriday Garden Club is really doing some outstanding work in their community. I enjoyed working with the Concordia Home Demonstration Agent, Inez Calloway, serving on the Garden Club program and visiting at Haphazard Plantation with Mrs. Evans. If you've never visited Mrs. Evan's garden, you should set aside a date for that treat. I've never seen so many interesting plants in one garden and the owner can give you the botanical name for each one.

Garden Jobs
Some areas have had plenty of rain—some are still dry. Keep re-planting mulch to conserve the moisture you have. A last application of complete fertilizer (5-10-5) can be put around plants. Just sprinkle it on top of the mulch and water well. St. Augustine could have a monthly feeding, if you're trying to get the lawn established and if you have lots of trees. Stake tall plants that will fall over in the beds. Keep perennials cut back as they finish blooming. Put all of this cutting on the compost heap, as well as bean, pea hulls and other green trimmings from the kitchen.

For Minimum Upkeep
In these busy days, few of us have the hours to grow many small plants, because weeding takes so much time. It is possible to have something the year round to cut for the house by using flowering trees, vines, shrubs and bulbs. All require minimum time in cultivation. You are familiar with our many bulbs that start blooming in December and the many varieties that come into bloom at different times during the year.

Flowering shrub beds can be completely mulched, thus solving the weed problem. In January Baby's Breath Spirea, Flowering Quince, Star Magnolia, Popcorn Spirea, and our Saucer Magnolias begin blooming. These magnolias come in shades of pink and rose, lavender, dark purple, white touched with lavender and magenta.

In February Florida Jasmine puts out its blossoms along with the early flowering crab, Red Bud, Bridal Wreath, Forsythia, Pearl Bushes and Camellias.

March is our month of glorious spring bloom. The fringe tree (Gracery Gray Beard) white and pink dogwoods, tulip tree, pink bush honeysuckle (wild azalea), sweet olive, flowering peaches, pussy willows, flowering almond, primrose, jasmine, azaleas and camellias are a riot of color.

April brings confederate jasmine, lantana, ligustrum, black locust, magnolia grandiflora, photinia, pomegranate, magnolia fuscata and Florida Bunch roses.

April showers bring May flowers such as Abelia, Yucca, Butterfly Bush, Deutzia, Gardenias, Mock Orange, and Spirea Waterer.

June is the month of roses. If you call roses shrubs they would be included in this list. If you're one of those who believes roses too much work, leave them out. Other June blooming plants are Hydrangeas, Mimosa, Oleander, Vitex, Canna, Sweet Shrub, Weigela and Banana Plant.

July, August and September give us Clematis, all the many colored crepe myrtles and altheas, hibiscus and night blooming jasmine.

In October we have the foliage of the Sumac, Tallow tree, Ginkgo tree and maple.

In November and December we enjoy our berried plants such as the holly, pyracantha, yaupon and nandinas. We also have pine and magnolia foliage and ivy the year round.

So—if you're a working housewife (as I am) you can enjoy blooms berries and foliage the year round without too much work.

Around the House
If you'll notice an experienced flower arranger, you see her using just ordinary dishes instead of many fancy vases and bowls. Some of those I've seen used are goblets, pitchers, ash trays, refrigerator dishes, sugar bowls, flat casseroles, gray bowls, platters and relish dishes.

A cruet from the dime store will hold four or five little flowers, gracefully. Colored oven glassware holds bunched flowers nicely. Colored ramekins or custard cups will make a candle flower centerpiece, using pansies, violets or sweet peas around the candle.

Not only are the waxed paper milk cartons a time saver, but they prevent the loss of valuable vitamins when the container is exposed to the sun.

It seems the little ones will be eating less chocolate in their candy cans or paying a few cents more for their favorites, due to the advance in price of the cocoa bean.

Announcements
Congratulations to the new Sunset Garden Club in West Monroe. This club is made up of young homemakers who work. They want to learn gardening so they'll meet at night. Mrs. H. A. Malone is the president.

A number of you have been wanting information on making aluminum trays. Tune in on KNOE-TV Tuesday at 1:30 and see a very fine demonstration. Mrs. Irving Waller and Mrs. A. W. White, home demonstration club members from Thrifty Homemakers Club, will show you step by step just how to make these trays.

See you next Sunday.

Tim Tippet Play Center, W. Monroe Well Attended

Over eleven hundred Negro children attended the two playground centers in West Monroe located at the Tim Tippet School and on Lee Street in Old Trenton since their opening June 15, states A. G. Facer, chairman of the West Monroe Negro Recreation Council.

The centers are open in the morning from nine until eleven thirty for the small children. During this time they are taught handicraft skills and games under the supervision of Juanita Cox and Velma Bailey. Victor Morris directs the athletic at these centers on alternate days for the larger children who are employed during the days, in the afternoon from five until seven thirty.

The Negro citizens of West Monroe began their recreation program in 1934. Land for these sites was purchased by the citizens. Supervisors gave their service. Money for equipment was raised through projects.

1951 and 1952 the West Monroe Council appropriated $200 each year for supervision and equipment. In 1953 this was increased to $500. Negro churches, civic organizations and social clubs have consented to assist in securing permanent equipment for the center, states A. G. Facer.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

Be sure to drink plenty of water during the summer months.

Summer Is Ideal Season To Get Slim And Healthy

If you are wearing a heavy coat of natural fat, you will be much more uncomfortable in hot weather than your slimmer sister. Why not get rid of it now when it is easier to do so?

Actually you need less food anyway when the thermometer soars because your body does not have to provide so much heat to keep you comfortable. Also you are not likely to have as large an appetite when it is hot. Winter makes us hungry.

The markets are full of a wonderful variety of fruits and vegetables and greens of all sorts. For this reason as well as the decrease in appetite and the lessened need for heat, summer is an ideal time to drop those extra pounds.

For the next few weeks leave off the rich greasy, heavy foods and build your diet around fruits and vegetables, fruit juices, chilled skim milk or fat-free powdered milk, lean meat and fowl and seafood and salad greens.

Be sure that you drink plenty of water. If you drink much iced tea or coffee, use one of the no calorie sweeteners for a while. There are palatable salad dressings and oils on the market which are low in calorie count. Use these on your salads while you reduce.

Even though summer makes us feel lazy, we do get more outdoor exercise than we do in the winter. Take advantage of this season to build health and to improve your figure.

When it is very hot, it is not so difficult to deny ourselves those tempting but fattening foods. It is wise to use the great many different fruits and vegetables now available for a buildup in vitamin and mineral consumption. We are much more limited in choice during the colder months.

More exercise, less rich food and more food that is health-giving and

Your Problems

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Mrs. Landers: After I had prayed for a decent man who would be good to me, such a man came into my life. For six months we dated and were very happy. (He is 40.) Last December I found there was another woman, one he had known all his life, who was a close friend of his family and who dropped in every night to see him and to be taken to dinner to his folks' home Sunday night. He claims he can't stop seeing her as his family expects him to bring her and would be put out if he didn't. A brother and sister whom I know, however, tell me to marry him if I can as they think the world of me. I have never seen others in the family. What do you think I should do?—Upset

I think you should use your head, old girl. The man is 40 and even though he has known the other old girl all his life he has never married her... what makes you think he will break his tradition and marry you? You'll agree with me that he has cut his eye teeth (maybe lost them, too, by this time!), and should not be under the thumb of his family. At his age, he should be his own boss... as he obviously is not. What good will he be as a husband? Unless you want to be two-timed and dangled at the end of a string for the rest of the man's life, tell him to make up his mind. Tell him to decide for or against marriage or you do not want to see him again. So what if you have to start praying all over again? Better than than wasting your precious years on this sad sack.

Dear Mrs. Landers: For the last four years, my husband and I have lived with (but, paid rent) to his mother. Now we are buying a home and his mother is trying to talk my husband out of it. He is not a "mama's boy" but she certainly is putting up a good argument. Ever since we lived here, I have done all the washing, ironing and cooking, even up to the day I went to the hospital for the baby. As soon as I returned I had to start in again with the added work of the baby. Now, she has her mother with her, which makes still more work for me. She informed me yesterday that she was going to take a job and that I will have to stay here to take care of Granny. Please tell me what to do.—Stacy

The days of the daughter-in-law being slave and handmaiden to the husband's mother went out when we buried Cleopatra. Tell his mother not to bother getting a job; that she can rent the rooms you have been using and that you won't be around to take care of her mother.

Tell your husband you refuse to stay any longer; that his mother will keep right on finding chains to keep you there and that it will be best for you to rent elsewhere until your new home is ready. Sure there isn't a great-grandmother around, too, for whom you'll have to care?

Confidentially — J. W.: You and Bill are getting nowhere fast. As things stand you will drift apart or will drift into an unsatisfactory marriage filled with doubt as to whether you did the right or wrong thing by marrying. Give him up completely. Date others seriously. Don't date him or take him back unless it is genuine love that makes him call, only then would the marriage be any good. You've been too wishy-washy and it isn't good for you or for him.

Dear Ann Landers: I have enjoyed your interesting and helpful column for a long time and now that I am away from home, it is just like visiting with an old friend down here.—Ruth in Florida.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper.)

Air Reserve May Train Squadron In Shreveport

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—The Air Force notified Rep. Brooks (D-La.) today it is studying further the possibility of stationing an air reserve training squadron at Downtown Airport, Shreveport. Maj. Gen. C. E. Thomas Jr., wrote Brooks that a study has determined that the field would be a suitable site for training a squadron detached from a pilot training wing utilizing C-45 aircraft.

"This is based on the assumption that this type aircraft continues to be used for several years in this program," Thomas said.

"However, since it is possible that heavier type aircraft may be assigned which would not be suitable for this field, the matter of placing a detached squadron at Shreveport has been referred to headquarters Continental Air Command for further study and decision."

Good advice about bleaching from Good Housekeeping

FOR THE BULK OF YOUR FAMILY LAUNDRY YOU NEED A HEAVY-DUTY CHLORINE BLEACH, REPORTS LEADING HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

After years of study of washing problems, Good Housekeeping, leading household magazine, says this:

To maintain whiteness, use a heavy-duty chlorine bleach "for the white cottons and linens that make up the bulk of family laundry..."

"Typical items: sheets, pillowcases, dish and bath towels, face cloths, men's shirts (including striped and light colors), T shirts, shorts, aprons, gloves, handkerchiefs."

You do need to bleach—And of all the bleaches you can buy... only Purex gets clothes so white... so safely

There's no substitute for a chlorine bleach to get dirty cottons and linens dazzling white... really sanitary. And the right chlorine bleach is the one you can safely use every washday—PUREX. Just follow the label directions.

What's so different about PUREX Liquid Laundry Bleach? It's safer because it's pure. Our exclusive Intrafil® Process removes chemical impurities that cause bleach damage. What remains is better bleaching action—gentle, steady yet thorough. Millions of housewives have found that only PUREX gets clothes so white so safely.
